A DREAM.

BY CHRIS TILL.

Beneath the shade of willow trees,
Close by a rippling stream,
Reposing on a grassy bank
I fall asleep and dream:
I dream of Western sunny isles,
Bespangled o'er with flowers,
Of Eastern maids and fairy queens—
Of solitary bowers.
I dream of Isabella fair,
My love, my own sweet heart;
Of lily ring in a balmy grove
To gain her hand and heart.
We paused beneath a spreading oak—
Her hand I take in mine:
"You are the only one I love,"
She answers, "I am thine."

I clasped her to my breast at once,
When lo! she disappears,
But leaves a deathly skeleton
Which laugheth at my tears.
My blood runs cold, my heart stands still
My love begins to sink—
I awake: "Heavens! where am I?"
I'm lying in the "drink."

FATE OF A BULL-FIGHTER.

A TERRIBLE SCENE AT MADRID.

The Madrid correspondent of the don Standard writes under date of 18th:—"A horrible scene took place
Sunday in the bull-ring in the presence of the royal family and of the most mercenary gathering of this season.
Alfonso had asked the archduke Reof Austria to be present with the duchess at the national game in Plaza de Toros. His Majesty, with Austrian Prince, drove straight to ring, accompanied by the Duke of S-Count Morphy, and other members royal household. The Princess Austrias, after taking the Archduke to the popular concert early in the noon, also drove out to join the kin-
an open carriage, with postillions outriders, a la Daumont.

displayed from boyhood great daring
uncommon agility in pursuit of his dangerous calling.

In personal appearance he was a lit-
tlesome and strong built man, above dull height. In his magnificent coat closely fitting, to display the gra-lins and powerful sinews of this mogladiator, Frascuelo excited admiraand fault only could be found in the forehead and dull eyes of the bull fig-
On Sunday it was his lot to kill the bull, and he accomplished this work very creditably, but his admirers, intheless, cheered him then, according the rules of the ring, he ought to have remained inactive until his turn came,

attempted, it was the duty of the

CATARRH!

Five Years' Sickness Cured by Four Bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

Pain in Shoulders, Back and Lungs, and Droppings in Throat Disappear.

MR. T. J. B. HARDING,
DEAR SIR:—Being desirous that others may know something of the merits of your CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY, I wish to inform you what it has done for me. I am twenty-nine years old; had been out of health for about five years. I had employed three or four different doctors, and tried various medicines, without receiving any permanent benefit, but continued rather to grow worse, until last fall, when I had become so bad as to be unable to do an hour's work at a time. Had severe soreness and pain under the shoulder blades and through the shoulders, with very lame back, and a feeling in my right lung as though there was a weight bearing it down, with continual dropping in the throat and down upon the lungs. Such was my condition when I commenced taking your Catarrh Remedy, one bottle of which cured my pains and gave me an improved appetite, and after taking four bottles I was restored to health so as to be able to endure hard and continued labor, such as chopping and clearing land, at which I have been engaged the past season. My recovery I attribute solely, with God's blessing, to the use of your Catarrh Remedy.

A bull had knocked over in succession two picadors and disposed of their horn when a third tumble called for the assistance of the cuadrilla. The bull was large and ugly beast, with long, sharp horns, and he was in the habit of retreating to goad his fallen foes. Seeing him menace the picador lying helpless on the horse, Hermosilla, as was his duty sprang to the rescue, closely followed Frascuelo. Either would have sufficed to draw off the incensed animal, but at the sight of the daring capote the two bull fighters got too close to another, and caused in their feint a moment of pause, which enabled the bull to come at them like lightning, with lowered. Hermosilla managed to escape but Frascuelo was caught from behind and raised off the ground, shaken on horn, which had entered his thigh, then again gored. The others hurried up to the rescue and drew off the bull, which was on the point of agitating the wounded man. The whole scene had lasted but a few seconds, and loud cry of horror burst from every corner of the ring. Everybody sprang to the feet, from King Alfonso in the royal box to the lowest rabble down near the tiers. Shrieks of anguish burst from women, while others covered their faces with their hands or fans. Men of every rank and age could not refrain from using expressions of dismay and compassion, which were again renewed with the wretched sufferer, after rising to his feet, staggered a few steps and fell down pale and covered with blood, which streamed over his brilliant costume. The guard and soldiers had much trouble keeping the people from rushing into the ring and going from the galleries toward the door at which the wounded man had been carried out by the attendants. The confusion lasted some time; and one cared much for the bull or his tormentors, who went on relentlessly, sternly in their brutal struggle. The sole preoccupation of all was Frascuelo, and people awaiting with anxious verdict of the doctors.

King Alfonso, the Princess of Austria and the Austrian Princes were removed at this horrible catastrophe, much so that the Archduchess nearly fainted and had to depart. The King sent down his master of the horse to inquire into the state of the fallen bull fighter. He had been carried to a temporary hospital, which is in the corner part of the ring, close to the stable and to the charnel-house where horses and bulls are dragged out a each corral. There, in a small room not very well lighted up, are several band-aids and medicine chest with the surgical instruments necessary for any emergency. There also are always waiting a doctor but Frasuelo was caught from behind and raised off the ground, shaken on the horn, which had entered his thigh, and then again gored. The others hurried up to the rescue, and drew off the bull, which was on the point of again goring the wounded man. The whole scene had lasted but a few seconds, and loud cry of horror burst from every part of the ring. Everybody sprang to the feet, from King Alfonso in the royal box to the lowest rabble down near the barriers. Shrieks of anguish burst from the women, while others covered their face with their hands or fans. Men of ever rank and age could not refrain from uttering expressions of dismay and consternation, which were again renewed while the wretched sufferer, after rising to his feet, staggered a few steps and fell down pale and covered with blood, while streamed over his brilliant costume. The guard and soldiers had much trouble in keeping the people from rushing into the ring and going from the galleries toward the door at which the wounded man had been carried out by the attendant. The confusion lasted some time; and no one cared much for the bull or his tormentors, who went on relentlessly and sternly in their brutal struggle. The only sole preoccupation of all was Frasuelo, and people awaiting with anxiety the verdict of the doctors.

King Alfonso, the Princess of Austria and the Austrian Princes were much moved at this horrible catastrophe—much so that the Archduchess nearly fainted and had to depart. The King sent down his master of the horse to inquire into the state of the fallen bull fighter. He had been carried to the temporary hospital, which is in the outer part of the ring, close to the stable and to the charnel-house where the horses and bulls are dragged out after each corrida. There, in a small room not very well lighted up, are several beds and a medicine chest with the surgical instruments necessary for any emergency. There also are always waiting a doctor and a priest. Close by there is a small altar, with candelabers and a crucifix upon which the dying bull-fighter can cast his last glance as the minister of his faith pronounces absolution and pardon over the sufferer. Frasuelo was conducted, or rather carried, thither, and several medical men gathered around him. They at once pronounced the wounds—three in number—to be very serious, the first had penetrated eight inches into the thigh and two inches into the peritoneal region. The loss of blood was great, and the doctors advised that the patient should be taken home at once or a letter. The news was carried out into the ring, and the people felt relief at the idea that Frasuelo was not dead. Spectators went out to see him as he was borne away by four of his friends and followed by hundreds of sympathizers. Stretched out at full length on the litter, the unfortunate tortoise looked pale and ghastly, but quite composed and begged to have few cigarettes, which he smoked all the way home. The melancholy procession went along the road to the modest house in Calle Jacometrezo, where the wife and children, and mother also, of the bull fighter were anxiously expecting his return. Friends had hastened on in front to warn them, and who can fancy the agony of anguish and pain of those miserable relatives when the litter was borne up the narrow stairs not without trouble. Eye-witness told me that when Frasuelo was laid down in his bedroom before he could be removed to his bed from the litter, the poor wife sprang up and clasped her arms round the wounded man, while his poor little children had to be taken away. The medical men ordered him to be left alone and in perfect quiet, so much so that none but his family were allowed in to his room. The character of the wounds, and the fact of injuries from the horns of bulls invariably leading in such cases to gangrene, make most people

A DREAM.
BY CHRIS TILL.
Beneath the shade of willow trees,
Close by a rippling stream,
Reposing on a grassy bank
I fall asleep and dream--
I dream of Western sunny isles,
Bespangled o'er with flowers--
Of Eastern maids and fairy queens--
Of solitary bowers.
I dream of Isabella fair,
My love, my own sweet-heart;
Of lying in a balmy grove
To gain her hand and heart.
We paused beneath a spreading oak--
Her hand I take in mine;
"You are the only one I love,"
She answers, "I am thine."
I clasped her to my breast at once,
When lo! she disappears,
But leaves a deathly skeleton
Which laugheth at my tears.
My blood runs cold, my heart stands still.
My love begins to sink--
I awake: "Heavens! where am I?"
I'm lying in the "drink."

FATE OF A BULL-FIGHTER.
A TERRIBLE SCENE AT MADRID.
The Madrid correspondent of the London Standard writes under date of April 18th:—"A horrible scene took place on Sunday in the bull-ring in the presence of the royal family and of the most numerous gathering of this season. King Alfonso had asked the archduke Reginer of Austria to be present with the Archduchess at the national game in the Plaza de Toros. His Majesty, with the Austrian Prince, drove straight to the ring, accompanied by the Duke of Sesto, Count Morphy, and other members of the royal household. The Princess of Austria, after taking the Archduchess to the popular concert early in the afternoon, also drove out to join the king in an open carriage, with postillicons and outriders, a la Daumont.
Frasuelo is one of the youngest men in his profession. Born in 1844, he had displayed from boyhood great daring and uncommon agility in pursuit of his dangerous calling.
In personal appearance he was a handsomely and strong built man, above middle height. In his magnificent costume closely fitting, to display the graceful limbs and powerful sinews of this modern gladiator, Frasuelo excited admiration, and fault only could be found in the low forehead and dull eyes of the bull fighter. On Sunday it was his lot to kill the first bull, and he accomplished this work not very creditably, but his admirers, nevertheless, cheered him, then, according to the rules of the ring, he ought to have remained inactive until his turn came, and again, if an extraordinary rescue was to be attempted, it was the duty of the next espada to dash out, cloak in hand, when ever a picador was exposed to the bull. Frasuelo, however, never could resist the temptation of courting frantic applause for some daring feat of agility, and thus it was that he met his fate.
A bull had knocked over in succession two picadors and disposed of their horses when a third tumble called for the assistance of the cuadrilla. The bull was a large and ugly beast, with long, sharp horns, and he was in the habit of returning to goad his fallen foes. Seeing him menace the picador lying helpless under the horse, Hermosilla, as was his duty, sprang to the rescue, closely followed by think the result will be fatal. Frasuelo has the best advice in Madrid, and it is curious to observe the mark of sympathy lavished on him. It will hardly seem credible, but among those who went to inquire after his condition I saw the Chamberlain, in the names written down on a book for that purpose were one-third of the grandes of Spain. Generals, Ambassadors, Deputies, Governors, artists, writers, and many ladies of rank. Telegrams have poured in by dozens from the provinces, and from celebrated bull-fighters, his former rivals. The house is literally besieged by people of all ranks, whom the Police are obliged to ask to move on and not obstruct the traffic, as carriages are driving up every moment to set down the more distinguished sympathizers. Eight hundred people called and left their names before midnight on the day of the accident and nearly 4,000 have already enrolled their signatures in the list. It is no exaggeration to say that Frasuelo enjoys more attention now in Madrid than the telegrams from the East. Such being, in respects to bull-fights, the tendency of opinion in Spain, it is hardly possible that those who criticise the barbarous amusement would be granted a hearing. The Epoca, chief among Conservative papers, remarks upon the sad effects of this cruel pastime, but it comes to the conclusion that at present legislation could no more reform it than the wise Charles III. did by his edicts in last century. Directly after his death the bull-fight mania grew to the zenith of its popularity and splendor in Spain. This lamentable accident has only been an occasion to display the deep-rooted sympathies of every class of society for the Plaza de Toros, and many Spaniards tell me that the ring is sure this season to be more crowded than ever"

ODESSA.
One of the first points of attack by the turks will probably be the port of Odessa. Odessa is one of the great grain depots of Europe; the chief port of the Black Sea, and the third commercial city of Russia. It is very old, and was settled by a colony of Tartars. The original fortifications were built by the Turks and reduced in 1789 by the Russians, who subsequently erected the principal fort which protects the harbour. The erection of the town, as it now stands, with its wide, and, for Russia, clean streets, its terraces and boulevards, its schools, handsome public buildings and commodious quays, is due to French talent and enterprise, the foundations having been laid by the Duc de Richelieu, whom the revolution drove out of France, and whose services were promptly accepted by Russia. The city is on a bay which forms a natural harbour capable of accommodating 200 ships, the water being so deep, even close to the shore, that the largest vessels of war can anchor at the wharves. Odessa contains over 500 granaries, which are kept constantly full by steamboat lines to the Danube, the Dniester and the Dnieper, and by rail connection through the richest wheat section of Russia. A large annual consignment is brought by rail from Moscow and St. Petersburg. Nearly four-fifths of export trade is in wheat, which amounts to

DON'T CROWD.
Don't crowd, the world is large enough
For you as well as me;
The doors of all are open wide--
The realm of thought is free,
In all earth's places you are right
To chase the best you can--
Provided that you do not try
To crowd some other man.
Don't crowd the good from out your heart
By fostering all that's bad,
But give to every virtue room--
The best that may be had;
To each day's record such a one
That you might well be proud;
Give each his right--give each his room,
And never try to crowd. CHAS. DICKENS

FASHION GOSSIP.
We are glad to note, says the Ecl that the coming season will allow a lit more freedom to ladies in the matter their dress skirts; and, though they m not be much, if any, wider, they will r be tied back so tightly as before. We are thankful for small mercies. As colors, there is decidedly some advan We are to see pale blues, faded grees greys, a pale cream pink--named r creme, resembling the lining of a shell some "lovely" mauves, and yellows every degree of shade. Now, bla "goes well" with yellow; and as it likely that yellow will be the prevaili color this season, the dealers in jet ornaments may prepare themselves for doi a brisk business. As to the faded gee young and pretty ladies might add them as a contrast to their being ar thing but faded themselves. The once popular fabr muslin, will come into use again flounces will be "all the go," and la mittens allowed to be worn at theatres a dinners though not at balls at prese and tabooed altogether for out-do wear. An immense quantity of embri dery, besides fringes and laces, will used. So set to work, young ladies, a show us what skill you have in embroi ing, with the skill we remember to ha seen exhibited by other young ladies embroidery twenty years ago! Hats i the coming season will be a bit of swindle. Capotes, with loose crown silk and narrow straw brims, will largely worn; but the newest shape hat, and the one which is likely to b come most popular, is stated to be adaptation of the hat so much in vog only lately. It is nearly round, with large and rather high crown and a wi flat brim, turned up on one side a Watteau. The brim is covered wi white silk, and the outside trimmed wi draperies of frayed silk of damask gauz with long trails of flowers over the cro and drooping veylet. As to jewelry, i the same reason that jet will be w precious stones of rich hues, such, i instance, as rubies, emeralds, and c bu cles, will become favorites in t fashionable world. Either would have sufficed to draw off the incensed animal, made rabid at the sight of the elaring capas. The two bull fighters got too close to one another, and caused in their feint a moment of pause, which enabled the bull to come at them like lightning, with head lowered. Hermosilla managed to escape but Frasuelo was caught from behind and raised off the ground, shaken on the horn, which had entered his thigh, and then again gored. A large annual consignment is brought by rail from Moscow and St. Petersburg. Nearly four-fifths of export trade is in wheat, which amounts to about $40,000,000, and is sent chiefly to Great Britain. This immense traffic, the handling of which is the sole means of existence for a large proportion of the population, will be stopped by a blockade, and Russia herself be made to feel the first hurt of the war. Whether the Turkish fleet can accomplish anything more than a blockade, remains to be seen. The city is on the edge of a high plateau. The space between the quays and the cliff is occupied by barracks, and batteries dot the shore at narrow intervals. The fort on the cliff at the southeast commands the entrance to the harbour and after it is silenced the invading vessels will float over a submarine torpedo town, which Russia for several years has been laying in the harbour as the best possible defence against a repetition of the disastrous experience of '54. The torpedoes recently sunk have rendered the harbour so dangerous that for some time special pilots have been required to guide the merchant vessels safely in and out.

THE ASHTABULA VERDICT.

The directors of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad Committee, differ from the coroner's jury and the legislative committee in their judgment of the Ashtabula bridge horror. "The cause of this accident," they say in their annual report, "is wrapped in mystery. The bridge had safely borne an enormous traffic for a period of thirteen years. The slightest suspicion that the bridge was not as safe as any in the country was never for a moment entertained by any officer of this company." Many experts, on the other hand, have declared that the bridge never was really safe. The report states that there were 159 persons upon the train, including nine children. Eighty-three were killed directly and five have died since, making 88 dead—63 were injured, and 8 were

FUNERAL FASHIONS.

Whenever a fashion starts in New York it rushes along without regard to fitness or propriety. A nobby funeral has especial regard to the hour of the day usually 11 in the morning. The seton has a great deal to do with giving character to the services. It is a common thing to give a clergymen, if he is off the right stamp, from $25 to $100 for his services. The amount of light let in the room, the pose of the coffin, the arrangement and costliness of the flowers, the casket itself with the number of coaches, attest the social rank of the departed. It is getting to be rather common for ladies to order their caskets and funeral trimmings while they are in good health. A wealthy lady in New Jersey has just done that thing. Another lady of this city purchased the material for her funeral attire, was measured by a dressmaker, had the garment made up in the latest style, fitted and tried on, as if she were going to a ball, and then carefully laid away in the drawer until the change should come.

A FUNNY MISTAKE.

There was Lady Baker, for instance. Her husband married her in Bulgaria, where she knew not a word of the strong English that is his native tongue. She was a finely educated girl, nevertheless, and was so ardently attached to her husband that she commenced at once to learn his language. Immediately after the marriage she went with him upon those African exploring expeditions which have made them both famous. She never saw England till she had been married some years, and not until accounts of her hairbreadth escapes by field and flood had had set elegant circles in London on the qui vive to behold her, the brave, gentle woman. Her first appearance was at a soiree given in her honor by Lady W—. Everybody admired her graceful, delicate beauty, and wondered that so refined a woman could have borne so much.

 horses and bulls are dragged out after each corrida. There, in a small room, not very well lighted up, are several beds and a medicine chest with the surgical instruments necessary for any emergency.
 There also are always waiting a doctor and a priest. Close by there is a small altar, with chandeliers and a crucifix, upon which the dying bull-fighter can cast his last glance as the minister of his faith pronounces absolution and pardon over the sufferer. Frascuelo was conducted, or rather carried, thither, and several medical men gathered around him.
 They at once pronounced the wounds—
 three in number—to be very serious, as the horn had penetrated eight inches into the thigh and two inches into the perineal region. The loss of blood was great, and the doctors advised that the patient should be taken home at once on a litter. The news was carried out into the ring, and the people felt relief at the idea that Frascuelo was not dead. Numbers went out to see him as he was borne away by four of his friends and followed by hundreds of sympathizers. Stretched out at full length on the litter, the unfortunate tortoise looked pale and ghastly, but quite composed and begged to have a few cigarettes, which he smoked all the way home. The melancholy procession went along the road to the modest house in Calle Jacometrezo, where the wife and children, and mother also, of the bullfighter were anxiously expecting his return. Friends had hastened on in front to warn them, and who can fancy the agony of anguish and pain of those miserable relatives when the litter was borne up the narrow stairs not without trouble. Eye-witness told me that when Frascuelo was laid down in his bed room,
 before he could be removed to his bed
 from the litter, the poor wife sprang up and clasped her arms round the wounded man, while his poor little children had to be taken away.
 The medical men ordered him to be left alone and in perfect quiet, so much so that none but his family were allowed into his room. The character of the wounds, and the fact of injuries from the horns of bulls invariably leading in such cases to gangrene, make most people feel the first hurt of the war. Whether the Turkish fleet can accomplish anything more than a blockade, remains to be seen. The city is on the edge of a high plateau. The space between the quays and the cliff is occupied by barracks, and batteries dot the shore at narrow intervals. The fort on the cliff at the southeast commands the entrance to the harbour and after it is silenced the invading vessels will float over a submarine torpedo town, which Russia for several years has been laying in the harbour as the best possible defence against a repetition of the disastrous experience of '54.

 The torpedoes recently sunk have rendered the harbour so dangerous that for some time special pilots have been required to guide the merchant vessels safely in and out.

THE ASHTABULA VERDICT.

The directors of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad Committee, differ from the coroner's jury and the legislative committee in their judgment of the Ashtabula bridge horror. "The cause of this accident," they say in their annual report, "is wrapped in mystery.
 The bridge had safely borne an enormous traffic for a period of thirteen years.
 The slightest suspicion that the bridge
 was not as safe as any in the country was never for a moment entertained by any officer of this company." Many experts, on the other hand, have declared that the bridge never was really safe.
 The report states that there were 159
 persons upon the train, including nine children. Eighty-three were killed directly and five have died since, making 88 dead; 63 were injured, and 8 were uninjured.

FEEDING THE DEAD.

The Chinese residents observed the festivities of feeding their dead yesterday. The cooking of the meats is done by a chosen chef de cuisine, in the Joss House. After the meat is all prepared, it is placed on large wooden trays and taken to the graveyard, laid near the tombs, and, although nothing is seen to disappear, the heathen firmly believe that the rapacious appetites of the Chinamen who live on the other side of Jordan are appeased for a year to come. After the feast yesterday the Chinamen returned home, and from the adjacent hillside a troop of Pinte Indians lit down on the cold grub like an army of locusts, and made short work of the feast. The Pintes are firm believers in the pagan practices,
 and are encouraging the heathen Chinese to feed their dead at shorter intervals.—

THROWING CHILDREN TO WOLVES

A curious and distressing case has recently been under the consideration of the police of Moscow. A few months ago a Russian peasant, with his wife and four children, were travelling in a sleigh along the banks of the Pruth, when they were pursued by a pack of wolves. The peasant urged on the horses as much as he could, but soon perceived the horrible fact that the wolves were fast gaining upon them. At the moment when the sleigh was surrounded by the ravening
 beasts, the man seized one of the children and threw it in the midst of them, and while the wolves were struggling over their prey he hastened on his horses, and gained ground. Four times the wolves came up with the fugitives, and four times the horrible sacrifice was completed.
 At last, the peasant and his wife arrived at the nearest village, leaving behind them the bones of their four children. In the bitterness of her despair, the mother informed against her husband; but the judges, considering that if the peasant
 had not resigned himself to the horrible sacrifice he would not only have lost his children, but also his wife, acquitted the prisoner.

a great deal to do with giving character
 to the services. It is a common thing to give a clergyman, if he is of the right stamp, from $25 to $100 for his services.
 The amount of light let in the room, the pose of the coffin, the arrangement and costliness of the flowers, the casket itself with the number of coaches, attest the social rank of the departed. It is getting to be rather common for ladies to order
 their caskets and funeral trimmings while they are in good health. A wealthy lady in New Jersey has just done that thing. Another lady of this city purchased the material for her funeral attire, was measured by a dressmaker, had the garment made up in the latest style, fitted and tried on, as if she were going to a ball, and then carefully laid away in the drawer until the change should come.

A FUNNY MISTAKE.

There was Lady Baker, for instance.
 Her husband married her in Bulgaria,
 where she knew not a word of the strong English that is his native tongue. She was a finely educated girl, nevertheless,
 and was so ardently attached to her husband that she commenced at once to learn his language. Immediately after the marriage she went with him upon those African exploring expeditions which have made them both famous. She never saw England till she had been married some years, and not until accounts of her hair-breadth escapes by field and flood had had set elegant circles in London on the qui vive to behold her, the brave, gentle woman. Her first appearance was at a soiree given in her honor by Lady W.— Everybody admired her graceful, delicate beauty, and wondered that so refined a woman could have borne so much.
 Somebody said to her:

"Did you ever suffer greatly from thirst in the course of your adventures?
 Lady B. had learned English, you must remember, exclusively from her bluff husband. Therefore she replied: "Sometimes my thirst has been so great that I could see nothing but silver streams threading green fields, could hear nothing but the gurgle of cool water over mossy stones. I find thirst a blasted deal more unendurable in its first stages than hunger, although if I were forced to choose my death between the two, it would be a d—d difficult thing for me
 to do."

STONEWALL JACKSON.

"Stonewall" Jackson and his sister were orphan children, and were brought up together until he went to West Point.
 Like most orphan children, they were unusually attached to each other. She married and settled in Beverly, West Virginia, where her husband carried on a large farm or plantation. Her brother, the General, frequently visited her, and during these visits he would invariably go to the quarters of the slaves for the purpose of exhorting them on the subject of religion. Frequently the soldier would be seen on his knees in the midst of the children of Africa, offering earnest prayers for their salvation. When the war broke out the brother espoused the cause of the South and became the greatest of all Confederate Generals, with a world-wide reputation for consummate military ability, and laid down his life on the bloody field of Chancellorsville. The sister, in spite of the opposition of her brother, uninfluenced by his brilliant achievement, and the opposition of her husband and her relatives, sided with the cause of the Union and remained true to that cause to the end of the war. So great was the feeling engendered against her that she eventually separated from her husband and moved to Springfield, Ohio, and resided with a daughter who had married a Union officer.

FASHION GOSSIP.

We are glad to note, says the Echo, that the coming season will allow a little more freedom to ladies in the matter of their dress skirts; and, though they may not be much, if any, wider, they will not be tied back so tightly as before. We are thankful for small mercies. As to colors, there is decidedly some advance. We are to see pale blues, faded greens, greys, a pale cream pink--named rose creme, resembling the lining of a shell--some "lovely" mauves, and yellows in every degree of shade. Now, black "goes well" with yellow; and as it is likely that yellow will be the prevailing color this season, the dealers in jet ornaments may prepare themselves for doing a brisk business. As to the faded greens young and pretty ladies might adopt them as a contrast to their being anything but faded themselves. Fashion during the coming season, it is said, will have a decided inclination towards Louis XV. style. The once popular fabric, muslin, will come into use again; flounces will be "all the go," and lace mittens allowed to be worn at theatres and dinners though not at balls at present, and tabooed altogether for out-door wear. An immense quantity of embroidery, besides fringes and laces, will be used. So set to work, young ladies, and show us what skill you have in embroidering, with the skill we remember to have seen exhibited by other young ladies in embroidery twenty years ago! Hats for the coming season will be a bit of a swindle. Capotes, with loose crown in silk and narrow straw brims, will be largely worn; but the newest shape of hat, and the one which is likely to become most popular, is stated to be an adaptation of the hat so much in vogue only lately. It is nearly round, with a large and rather high crown and a wide flat brim, turned up on one side a la Watteau. The brim is covered with white silk, and the outside trimmed with draperies of frayed silk of damask gauze, with long trails of flowers over the crown and drooping veyet. As to jewellery, for the same reason that jet will be worn precious stones of rich hues, such, for instance, as rubies, emeralds, and car- bu- cles, will become favorites in the fashionable world. And a passion has sprung up for wearing rings of the date of Queen Anne; but as it is quite impossible that everyone wanting them can have rings of the date of Queen Anne, some ingenious manufacturer will, no doubt, be able to supply in the reign of Queen Victoria what was not foreseen to be required in the reign of Queen Anne.

THE TOWN 'AT GIBRALTAR.

The scenes in the lovely bay and in the narrow zigzag streets of the little town are bustling and full of life. The bay is dotted with ships and boats of many kinds, anchored in the shadow of the rock. On the quays of the town you recognize the reason of the saying that Gibraltar is an epitome of the three continents. Here, besides English and Scottish soldiers, who are met on every hand in the vicinity of the rock, are to be seen swarthy and handsome Moors from opposite Barbary, with their snow-white turbans, flowing robes, bare leather-colored legs, and loose slippers down at the heel; Jews from over the strait, in gaudy embroidered costumes, with broad var-colored sashes wound about their waists, and baggy white trousers; Spanish smugglers, in tightfitting coats and breeches, fastened down the sides with silver buttons; pretty dark-eyed women of Genoa, arrayed in scarlet cloaks and hoods, the latter trimmed with broad black velvet; Spanish beauties, with long lashes and languishing eyes, wearing their sweeping black lace veils and graceful mantillas; Highland soldiers, in plaid and tartan; and a race of acclimated English, bronzed and semi-Spanish in feature, the natives of Gibraltar, upon whom the Spanish have bestowed the rather uncomplimentary epithet of "Rock Scorpions." Out into the sea stretch the various "moles," the most conspicuous being the old and new moles, while at the northern end of the town rise the towers, battlements, and crumbling walls of the old Moorish castle--an imposing relic of the days of Moslem ascendancy. In the distance, among the hills and groves, peeps out the ancient little town of San Roque--a curious place, and well worthy a visit. Every where about as well as on the rock you are reminded of the fact that Gibraltar is, first of all, a fortress. Soldiers and guards, deploying, lounging, or on post, present themselves at every turn; high up on the cliffs the diminished figures of sentinels are seen pacing to and fro; in the pleasure gardens the most noticeable persons are the officers, strolling and taking their ease; the tattoo of drums, the roar of cannon at stated hours, the opening and closing of the great gates that separate the fortress from the town, all impress one with the military importance of the place. Still more marked appears the military character of the rock, as you glance up toward the beetling cliffs, and see, yawning from innumerable port-holes, and above long ranges of battlements, and from many an embrasure and turret, the cannon which guard the entrance to the Mediterranean; and as, curious to behold the marvels of the fortress in their details, you cross the draw bridge, go under the low arched gateways, pass the parade and Alameda, ascend the irregular streets which creep in steps up the sides of the crags, leave behind the quaint old Moorish castle, and at last find yourself literally entering the rock through an iron gateway. The first glance reveals the immense labors which have been undertaken to perfect by art the defenses with which nature has endowed Gibraltar. One sees before him a series of batteries, each with its

RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE IN RUSSIA.

RUSSIAN AND TURKISH HUMANITY COMPARED

The Cologne Gazette, commenting upon the disclosures recently made respecting religious intolerance in Russia, and the unfortunate position of the Catholic Church throughout the empire, says:—"While Russia is declaring that she undertakes the approaching war against Turkey solely for the advancement of humanity, the institutions of Russia herself suggest the question whether a half-barbaric power is justified in avowing herself the champion of morality. We shall confine ourselves only to one point, that is religious toleration; for the Turks are accused of fanatically oppressing and persecuting the Christians. Now, how far is tolerance in religious matters observed in Russia? She has, like Turkey, a state church, the Greek orthodox, which is favored by the government by all possible means. Indeed, it is expressly prohibited by law, and made a capital offense, to leave the orthodox church for any other. All children, also, offspring of mixed marriages, if one party belongs to the State church, must be brought up in the Greek orthodox faith. Surely, despotism and the very opposite of humanity cannot be carried further. We will simply point out what a condition has been created by such intolerance in the Baltic provinces, what insurmountable obstacles are met with in Russia by foreign missions, Bible societies, etc. Much-dreaded Turkey offers a pleasing contrast in all those relations. Tolerance is an inherited maxim of government in Turkey. During the many conquests made by Christian nations in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, they imposed their faith upon the conquered races with fire and sword. We need only mention Spain and America. The Sultan, however, declared directly after the conquest of Constantinople that the different Christian churches were to be left undisturbed in their belief, and to the present day the Christians of Turkey have had their own church government. All that has been required of them is that they should raise the imposed taxes. This may have been mere indolence and indifference; but the fact remains. It is also a fact that the heavy oppression of taxation in Turkey, justly complained of by the Christians, is exercised far more harshly by their own clergy than by the Turkish government. That government has, especially lately, shown itself very tolerant toward missions and Christian associations, has lent a willing hand to the foundation of the bishopric of Jerusalem, has given the site for new churches, or generously contributed, etc. We have recently seen how the American mission, which have many flourishing schools and institutions in Bulgaria, when the question of a Russian occupation of Bulgaria was first raised, applied anxiously for protection to the English Government, their own being unwilling to meddle in European affairs. They feared that there would be an end to religious tolerance as

as in the last. It is no exaggeration now in Madrid when the s from the East. FUNERAL FASHIONS.

Whenever a fashion starts in New York it rushes along without regard to fitness or propriety. A nobby funeral has especial regard to the hour of the day usually 11 in the morning. The sexton has a great deal to do with giving character to the services. It is a common thing to give a clergyman, if he is of the right stamp, from $25 to $100 for his services. The amount of light let in the room, the pose of the coffin, the arrangement and costliness of the flowers, the casket itself with the number of coaches, attest the social rank of the departed. It is getting to be rather common for ladies to order their caskets and funeral trimmings while they are in good health. A wealthy lady in New Jersey has just done that thing. Another lady of this city purchased the material for her funeral attire, was measured by a dressmaker, had the garment made up in the latest style, fitted and tried on, as if she were going to a ball, and then carefully laid away in the drawer until the change should come.

Ascending constantly, you find that there is tier after tier of these tunnels. There, if necessity should arise, the gunners might stand and pour their deadly fire upon fleet or cohort, perfectly shielded by the massive and solid rock, which no missile, however destructive, could no more than feebly indent. A DOG'S REVENGE.

A gentleman of wealth and position in London had some years ago a country-house and farm about sixty miles from the metropolis. At this country residence he kept a number of dogs, and among them a very large mastiff and a Scotch terrier; and, at the close of one of his summer residences in the country, he resolved to bring his terrier with him to London for the winter season. There being no railway to that particular part of the country, the dog travelled with the servants in a post-chariage, and on his arrival at the town-house was brought out to the stable, where a large Newfoundland was kept as a watch-dog. This latter individual looked with anything but pleasure on the arrival of the intruder

The Sultan, however, declared directly after the conquest of Constantinople that the different Christian churches were to be left undisturbed in their belief, and to the present day the Christians of Turkey have had their own church government. All that has been required of them is that they should raise the imposed taxes. This may have been mere indolence and indifference; but the fact remains. It is also a fact that the heavy oppression of taxation in Turkey, justly complained of by the Christians, is exercised far more harshly by their own clergy than by the Turkish government. That government has, especially lately, shown itself very tolerant toward missions and Christian associations, has lent a willing hand to the foundation of the bishopric of Jerusalem, has given the site for new churches, or generously contributed, etc. We have recently seen how the American mission, which have many flourishing schools and institutions in Bulgaria, when the question of a Russian occupation of Bulgaria was first raised, applied anxiously for protection to the English Government, their own being unwilling to meddle in European affairs. They feared that there would be an end to religious tolerance as soon as the Russians entered Bulgaria, and began to apply Russian principles also to the country. But we will leave that unnoticed for the present, for the purpose of contrasting it with the unfortunate position of the Catholic Church in Russia. We have often had to combat ultra-montane papers when they foolishly talked of a persecution, of a diocletian persecution of the Catholic Church in Germany. But there can be no doubt that a persecution, a cruel persecution of the Catholic Church has been going on for years in Russia. The reports we ourselves have received were so fearful and horrible that we laid them aside, because we thought them unauthenticated and exaggerated, and also because we especially, who had always frankly censured Russia for her blameable proceedings in the Eastern question, wished to avoid even the semblance of animosity. But now that the English Government has submitted to Parliament papers on the subject, it would have been a sin of omission on our part not to revert to it. The facts as given in these reports have such a touching eloquence that it is superfluous to add another word. If we did not know already that Russia invades Turkey for quite other purposes, the facts as stated would be sufficient to show that Russia is not impelled by zeal for humanity."

SAGACITY OF A CIRCUS HORSE.

Without depreciating modern establishments of this kind our recollections go back to Astley's Amphitheatre, near Westminster bridge, London, as it used to be 30 or 40 years ago, under the management of the late Mr. Ducrow. The feats there performed by some of the horses were exceedingly wonderful. The animals seemed to possess a degree of human intelligence. They were accomplished actors. Their powers of simulation with a view to entertain spectators went far beyond what anyone could exand Russia herself be made to feel the hurt of the war. Whether the fleet can accomplish anything more than a blockade, remains to be seen.

The city is on the edge of a high cliff. The space between the quays and the cliff is occupied by barracks, and the shore at narrow intervals.

The fort on the cliff at the south commands the entrance to the harbor and after it is silenced the invading ships will float over a submarine town, which Russia for several years has been laying in the harbor as a possible defence against a repetition of the disastrous experience of '54. Orpedoes recently sunk have rendered the harbor so dangerous that for time special pilots have been retained to guide the merchant vessels in and out.

THE ASHTABULA VERDICT.

The directors of the Lake Shore and Western Railroad Committee, from the coroner's jury and the committee in their judgment of the Ashtabula bridge horror. "The verdict of this accident," they say in their report, "is wrapped in mystery. The bridge had safely borne an enormous load for a period of thirteen years. The lightest suspicion that the bridge was as safe as any in the country ever for a moment entertained by the officers of this company." Many exponents of the other hand, have declared the bridge never was really safe. Report states that there were 159 persons upon the train, including nine children. Eighty-three were killed and five have died since, making a total of 63 were injured, and 8 were maimed.

FEEDING THE DEAD.

Chinese residents observed the rites of feeding their dead yesterday. The cooking of the meats is done by a chef de cuisine, in the Joss house. After the meat is all prepared, placed on large wooden trays and taken to the graveyard, laid near the graves, and, although nothing is seen to eat, the heathen firmly believe that the appetites of the Chinamen live on the other side of Jordan are seduced for a year to come. After the yesterday the Chinamen returned, and from the adjacent hillside a band of Pinte Indians lit down on the scrub like an army of locusts, and short work of the feast. The Pintes are believers in the pagan practices, and encourage the heathen Chinese to feed their dead at shorter intervals. — Cal. Sentinel April 21.

DRIVING CHILDREN TO WOLVES

A curious and distressing case has been under the consideration of the consular office of Moscow. A few months ago a Russian peasant, with his wife and children, were travelling in a sleigh along the banks of the Pruth, when they were attacked by a pack of wolves. The father urged on the horses as much as he could, but soon perceived the horrible fact that the wolves were fast gaining upon him. At the moment when he was surrounded by the ravenous pack, the man seized one of the children in the midst of them, and while the wolves were struggling over their prey he hastened on his horses, and escaped. Four times the wolves up with the fugitives, and four times the horrible sacrifice was completed, the peasant and his wife arrived at the nearest village, leaving behind them the bones of their four children. In the midst of her despair, the mother indulged against her husband; but then, considering that if the peasant resigned himself to the horrible fate he would not only have lost his life, but also his wife, acquitted the father.

a great deal to do with giving character to the services. It is a common thing to give a clergyman, if he is of the right stamp, from $25 to $100 for his services. The amount of light let in the room, the pose of the coffin, the arrangement and costliness of the flowers, the casket itself with the number of coaches, attest the social rank of the departed. It is getting to be rather common for ladies to order their caskets and funeral trimmings while they are in good health. A wealthy lady in New Jersey has just done that thing. Another lady of this city purchased the material for her funeral attire, was measured by a dressmaker, had the garment made up in the latest style, fitted and tried on, as if she were going to a ball, and then carefully laid away in the drawer until the change should come.

A FUNNY MISTAKE.

There was Lady Baker, for instance. Her husband married her in Bulgaria, where she knew not a word of the strong English that is his native tongue. She was a finely educated girl, nevertheless, and was so ardently attached to her husband that she commenced at once to learn his language. Immediately after the marriage she went with him upon those African exploring expeditions which have made them both famous. She never saw England till she had been married some years, and not until accounts of her hairbreadth escapes by field and flood had had set elegant circles in London on the qui vive to behold her, the brave, gentle woman. Her first appearance was at a soiree given in her honor by Lady W—. Everybody admired her graceful, delicate beauty, and wondered that so refined a woman could have borne so much. Somebody said to her:

"Did you ever suffer greatly from thirst in the course of your adventures? Lady B. had learned English. You must remember, exclusively from her bluff husband. Therefore she replied: "Sometimes my thirst has been so great that I could see nothing but silver streams threading green fields, could bear nothing but the gurgle of cool water over mossy stones. I find thirst a blasted deal more unendurable in its first stages than hunger, although if I were forced to choose my death between the two, it would be a difficult thing for me to do."

STONEWALL JACKSON.

"Stonewall" Jackson and his sister were orphan children, and were brought up together until he went to West Point. Like most orphan children, they were unusually attached to each other. She married and settled in Beverly, West Virginia, where her husband carried on a large farm or plantation. Her brother, the General, frequently visited her, and during these visits he would invariably go to the quarters of the slaves for the purpose of exhorting them on the subject of religion. Frequently the soldier would be seen on his knees in the midst of the children of Africa, offering earnest prayers for their salvation. When the war broke out the brother espoused the cause of the South and became the greatest of all Confederate Generals, with a world-wide reputation for consummate military ability, and laid down his life on the bloody field of Chancellorsville. The sister, in spite of the opposition of her brother, uninfluenced by his brilliant achievements and the opposition of her husband and her relatives, sided with the cause of the Union and remained true to that cause to the end of the war. So great was the feeling engendered against her that she eventually separated from her husband and moved to Springfield, Ohio, and resided with a daughter who had married a Union officer.

A DOG'S REVENGE.

A gentleman of wealth and position in London had some years ago a country-house and farm about sixty miles from the metropolis. At this country residence he kept a number of dogs, and among them a very large mastiff and a Scotch terrier; and, at the close of one of his summer residences in the country, he resolved to bring his terrier with him to London for the winter season. There being no railway to that particular part of the country, the dog travelled with the servants in a post-carriage, and on his arrival at the town-house was brought out to the stable, where a large Newfoundland was kept as a watch-dog. This latter individual looked with anything but pleasure on the arrival of the intruder from the country, and consequently the Scotch terrier had not been very long in his new home when this canine master of the stable attacked him, and, in the language of human beings, gave him a sound thrashing. The little animal could, of course, never hope by himself to chastise his host for this inhospitable welcome, but he determined that by some agency chastisement should come. Accordingly he lay very quiet that night in a remote corner of the stable, but when morning had fully shone forth he was nowhere to be found. Search was made for him, as the phrase says, high and low, but without success, and the conclusion reluctantly arrived at was that he had been stolen. On the third morning after his disappearance, however, he again showed himself in London, but this time not alone; for, to the amazement of every one, he entered the stable attended by the big mastiff from Kent. This great brute had no sooner arrived than he flew at the Newfoundland dog, who had so badly treated his little terrier friend, and a severe contest ensued, which the little terrier himself, seated at a short distance, viewed with the utmost dignity and satisfaction. The result of the battle was that the mastiff came off the conqueror, and gave his opponent a tremendous beating. When he had quite satisfied himself as to the result, this great avenger from Kent scarcely waited to receive the recognition of his master, who had been sent for immediately on the dog's arrival, but at once marched out of the stable, to the door of which the little terrier accompanied him, and was seen no more. Some few days afterwards, however, the gentleman received a letter from his steward in the country, informing him of the sudden appearance of the terrier there, and his sudden disappearance along with the mastiff; and stating that the latter had remained away three or four days, during which they had searched in vain for him, but he had just returned home again. It then, of course, became quite clear that the little dog, finding himself unable to punish the town bully, had thought of his "big brother" in the country, had travelled over the sixty miles which had separated them in order to gain his assistance, and had recounted to him his grievance; it was plain also that the mastiff had consented to come and avenge his old friend, had travelled with him to London, and having fulfilled his promise, had returned home, leaving the little fellow free from annoyance for the future.

Without depreciating modern establishments of this kind our recollections go back to Astley's Amphitheatre, near Westminster bridge, London, as it used to be 30 or 40 years ago, under the management of the late Mr. Ducrow. The feats there performed by some of the horses were exceedingly wonderful. The animals seemed to possess a degree of human intelligence. They were accomplished actors. Their powers of simulation with a view to entertain spectators went far beyond what anyone could expect whose knowledge is confined to the ordinary class of horses. We will mention a few particulars regarding the horses at Astley's as they occur to our memory: One evening the performance represented a house on fire. All the inhabitants of the dwelling had managed to escape except a lady in an upper story. You saw her at a window throwing about her arms wildly, and screaming for help. Her appeals to the assembled crowd beneath were heart-rending. The firemen could not reach her, for the stair was seemingly in a blaze, and there was no fire escape. The spectators in the theatre were wrought up to an agony, it being but too evident that the poor lady was doomed to perish by a painful and violent death. In the midst of the commotion a horse which belonged to the lady rushed upon the stage. In its stable it heard the screams of its mistress, and hastened to do its best to save her. Without saddle or bridle it was seen to rush into the house, and climb the stair amid flames and volumes of smoke. It reached the apartment where the lady was. She mounted on its back, holding by the mane, and the horse, descending the stair, brought her safely to the ground. Prolonged shouts of applause rewarded the hazardous exploit. The whole thing was a beautiful piece of acting, evoking throughout sentiments of pleasure and admiration. Nothing but kindness and long training could have made the horse so clever in knowing what to do and do it well. The feat was the more surprising as horses usually have a dread of fire which is not easily conquered. It will be understood that the fire had been so adroitly managed as to effect no injury on the theatre and that their never had been any real danger. — Chambers' Journal.

THE WAR NEWS.

THE BATTLE OF BATUM—TURKISH VICTORY IN ASIA MINOR.

LONDON, May 14.—A Batum special of Friday says:—"About five o'clock this morning the Russian forces, largely augmented with batteries, and made a furious attack upon the heights defending Batum on the land side, which were occupied by Bashi-Bazouks. The Ottoman troops were entrenched upon the slopes and ledges of the hills, and opened a fire of cannon and musketry which literally mowed the Russians down in swathes. They fell by scores and hundreds on the plain below the Turkish positions. During their attempts to make way against this fire a body of Turkish horse and foot, taking advantage of the thick forest, broke forth upon the flank of the Russian column, and effected a great slaughter, the Muscovites being upon ground perfectly open, and having no choice but to fight or fly. In a short time the spot which was the scene of this flank movement became covered with dead and dying Russians, but the enemy quickly brought up reinforcements, and the battle was renewed with much determination for many hours. The efforts of the assailants were desperately maintained, but towards midday their artillery fire slackened, and they at length withdrew."

The victory was won by the extraordinary courage of the Bashi-Bazouks. The dead and wounded on the Russian side exceed 4,000. The engagement lasted over eight hours. The Russians lost many guns. The only Turkish officer of note killed is Khelim Bey, Major of Irregulars.

Queen blames Gladstone for encouraging Russia in hazzarding a general European rupture through a war with Turkey.

A despatch from Port Said states that the English fleet is anchored in a position completely guarding the entrance to the canal there.

An attempt was made to get up an anti-Russian demonstration in Hyde Park. The crowd only numbered about 3,000, speakers included. No one of note was present, and the meeting ended in a row.

In case of emergency, arrangements are so far complete that the authorities reckon on being able, if necessary, to embark 60,000 men in ten days.

SINKING OF THE TURKISH MONITOR.

FULL PARTICULARS.

New York, May 14, 5.30 a.m.—The Herald correspondent stationed at the Russian headquarters at Jassy telegraphs, under date of yesterday, details of the sinking of the Turkish monitor by the Russian batteries before Ibrail on the River Danube. He says:—

"The entire Turkish Flotilla, consisting of heavy armed monitors and a few gunboats of the first and second class, appeared before the Town of Ibrail, and, on coming into position, began bombarding the place. The fire of the Turkish vessels was at once returned by the Russian shore batteries, and the artillery battle was soon a fierce and deadly one, and continued for some time. At length two shells were fired from a piece in one of the Russian batteries, under the direction of Commandant Samaili, at one of the monitors having two turrets and three masts, named the Lonkfgelli. The vessel fired at was at a distance of two miles from the battery, yet both of the shells struck the monitor. As they fell the vessel seemed a moment to be rising out of the water, and in less than minute after she sank. There was no explosion.

RUNNING THE RUSSIAN BATTERIES.

HOBART PASHA'S SUCCESSFUL RUN THROUGH THE BLOCKADE AT GALATZ.

The account of Hobart Pasha's defiance of the Russians on the Danube makes a thrilling story. While his vessel was lying near Rustchuk the Turkish authorities received intelligence of the arrival of the Russians at Galatz, and they were placing torpedoes in the river. Hobart Pasha was advised to leave his steamer in the Danube and return to Constantinople via Varna, but, disdainful all such counsel, he declared that he would rather blow up his ship than desert her. Night approaching, he made everything ready for running into the Black Sea in opposition to all Russian hostile intentions, getting clear fires under the boilers of his craft in order to avoid smoke from her funnel, and other arrangements. The Rethymo, he it said, is a very fast boat, capable of steaming at the rate of 15 knots an hour. When Hobart Pasha started on his daring expedition the Danube current was running swiftly, being estimated at fully five knots an hour. Upon nearing Galatz he found that heavily armed Russian batteries commanded the river, looking capable of sinking anything afloat, besides the torpedoes reported to be hidden beneath the waters. Immediately it was dark the word was passed "Lights out," and the steamer sped rapidly along. The batteries were soon reached, and the Russian lanterns, the heavy guns and soldiers in great numbers were clearly visible to those who manned the saucy Rethymo, when suddenly a rocket was sent up from the Roumanian shore to apprise the Muscovite gunners of Hobart Pasha's coming. Other rockets followed quick succession. Then the hoarse word of command was distinctly heard; bugles sounded, and the drums beat merrily, summoning the Russians to their posts. Hobart Pasha expected every moment to be blown out of the water by the fire of heavy guns he was treating so cavalierly but being determined to make efforts in some degree proportionate to the great risk he was facing, he ran his vessel close in shore—not forty metres from the batteries themselves—indeed, so near that the Russian gunners were unable to compress their pieces sufficiently fast to get a good aim. His boat went quickly by at 20 knots an hour, and soon all danger was over. When satisfied he had nothing to fear from his enemies, Hobart Pasha ordered the crew of the Rethymo, which carries one 40-pounder Armstrong gun, to throw one shell into the centre of the Russian camp, an order which was quickly obeyed—the missile bursting in the midst of the Muscovite tents. Its effects were of course unknown, but it was the first cannon shot fired upon the Danube in the Russo-Turkish war. Hobart Pasha subsequently proceeded to Constantinople, where he received a hearty welcome and enthusiastic congratulations.

Hobart Pasha reports the Russians in great force close to Galatz, making preparations apparently to cross the Danube and enter the Dobrudzha to move upon Varna. He also found that two small Russian gun-boats had been brought by rail across Roumania, and were ready for launching in the river. He has formed an opinion that the depth of water is insufficient to enable gun-boat operations against Galatz to be successfully carried out, but believes that if he were allowed to act, he could prevent any crossing of the Russians. The Muscovites fired shell and shots in considerable quantities but the daring of Hobart Pasha carried him into the Black Sea, past all dangers, with flying colors.

NAPANEE, MAY 25th, 1877.

THE LATE SESSION.

The session of the Dominion Parliament, which closed the other week, was remarkable for two things: the bitterness of the party feeling displayed, and the number and enormity of the Tory scandals unearthed. It was not to be expected that the Government would meet the Opposition leaders with very friendly feelings after the course pursued by the latter during the recess. Sir John A. Macdonald and his troupe made it their special business last summer, to organize a series of pic-nics for the special purpose of giving them the opportunity of slandering and vilifying the Government. At these gatherings, the actions of the Government were misrepresented, their characters traduced, their friends slandered, and in many instances the foulest personal abuse heaped upon them. It no doubt is beyond the power of Sir John A. Macdonald, Dr. Tupper, et hoc, to permanently injure the character of any respectable man, but still not to feel annoyed at their persistent and dastardly attacks would indicate an amount of callousness to which few but Sir John A. Macdonald can lay a claim. One of Sir John's strong points as a leader is that he has no political character to lose. No deed that he can perform can injure his reputation. It is very different with statesmen like Messrs. Blake and Mackenzie, whose private and political record are unspotted and unimpeachable; and therefore it is not surprising that they felt like dealing somewhat sharply with the men who had spent an entire summer in trying to blacken their reputations. Whilst the Government manifested that indignation which men conscious of their honesty and uprightness always show in presence of their traducers, the Opposition were bitter and violent because they cannot get office. Mr. Rymal once declared that the proverbial bear robbed of her whelps is milder personified compared with the Tory out of office, and the recent session furnished many scandalous though very striking illustrations of the truth of this statement. Under these circumstances it is not at all remarkable that there should be a little more than the

FULL PARTICULARS.

New York, May 14, 5.30 a.m.—The Herald correspondent stationed at the Russian headquarters at Jassy telegraphs, under date of yesterday, details of the sinking of the Turkish monitor by the Russian batteries before Ibrail on the River Danube. He says:—

"The entire Turkish flotilla, consisting of heavy armed monitors and a few gun-boats of the first and second class, appeared before the Town of Ibrail, and, on coming into position, began bombarding the place. The fire of the Turkish vessels was at once returned by the Russian shore batteries, and the artillery battle was soon a fierce and deadly one, and continued for some time. At length two shells were fired from a piece in one of the Russian batteries, under the direction of Commandant Samaili, at one of the monitors having two turrets and three masts, named the Lonkögelli. The vessel fired at was at a distance of two miles from the battery, yet both of the shells struck the monitor. As they fell the vessel seemed a moment to be rising out of the water, and in less than minute after she sank. There was no explosion, and the monitor went down so suddenly that it is believed the fatal projectiles did not strike the powder magazine, but fell into the hold, where they exploded, no doubt tearing large holes in her bottom, the water rushing in so rapidly that she sank without any warning. As soon as the catastrophe was comprehended to its fullest extent the Russians made an effort to succor their enemies. A boat was despatched from the shore to the scene of the wreck, in which was an officer of Marines named Skowlew, an aide-de-camp named Ragoulai, and Lieut. Doubanoff. They were unsuccessful in finding any of the officers and crew in the water, but Lieut. Doubanoff had the honor of capturing the flag of the sunken monitor. The ill-fated vessel was under the command of Hedzet Bey, and had 200 men on board at the time she was so suddenly destroyed. Out of this number only one man was saved, and he was picked up at the distance of a mile from the other Turkish vessels. None of the Turkish commanders made any attempt to succor their comrades in distress. The sinking of the monitor was a remarkable event, sudden and supreme in its effects. At eight o'clock that evening the Grand Duke Nicholas, having been apprised of the news, at once telegraphed to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor Alexander, reciting the main facts. During the same night the Czar telegraphed to the Grand Duke, asking for the name of the commandant whence the shells were fired, and that of the artilleryist who pointed the gun. According to the rules of the Russian service, both the officer and the man are entitled to receive the Grand Cross of St. George.

The European Situation

The London World sums up a review of the situation thus:—
That Austria will move troops into Bosnia, is most probable. The line of action for England is probably marked out. There are tasks we cannot, and tasks that we can, undertake. We cannot cope with Russia in the open field; for our small contingent of forty thousand men, far from its base, would soon dwindle to a shadow. But we can defend be blown out of the water by the fire of heavy guns he was treating so cavalierly but being determined to make efforts in some degree proportionate to the great risk he was facing, he ran his vessel close in shore—not forty metres from the batteries themselves—indeed, so near that the Russian gunners were unable to compress their pieces sufficiently fast to get a good aim. His boat went quickly by at 20 knots an hour, and soon all danger was over. When satisfied he had nothing to fear from his enemies, Hobart Pasha ordered the crew of the Rathmo, which carries one 40-pounder Armstrong gun, to throw one shell into the centre of the Russian camp, an order which was quickly obeyed—the missile bursting in the midst of the Muscovite tents. Its effects were of course unknown, but it was the first cannon shot fired upon the Danube in the Russo-Turkish war. Hobart Pasha subsequently proceeded to Constantinople, where he received a hearty welcome and enthusiastic congratulations.

Hobart Pasha reports the Russians in great force close to Galatz, making preparations apparently to cross the Danube and enter the Dobrudzcha to move upon Varna. He also found that two small Russian gun-boats had been brought by rail across Roumania, and were ready for launching in the river. He has formed an opinion that the depth of water is insufficient to enable gun-boat operations against Galatz to be successfully carried out, but believes that if he were allowed to act, he could prevent any crossing of the Russians. The Muscovites fired shell and shots in considerable quantities but the daring of Hobart Pasha carried him into the Black Sea, past all dangers, with flying colors.

The Continental Press on Lord Derby's Reply to Russia.

The Russian Telegraphic Agency, announcing the delivery of Lord Derby's answer, says:—"We are assured that the Russian government will not reply to it. That would be to carry on a controversy when it is a question of making history."

The Berlin National Gazette believes Russia will not reply, because the only possible reply, would be a declaration of war.

The Paris Moniteur, the organ of the French Foreign Office, says it is certainly a most serious incident.

The Courrier de France declares it is impossible to imagine a more alarming diplomatic document. "We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that it is a perilous indication of coolness between England and Russia and Germany."

Lord Derby's reply has produced consideration surprise and sensation in Berlin. It is said to have caused serious pain and displeasure at St. Petersburg.

The Paris Temps commenting on Earl Derby's note, says:—"Such language is rarely used in communications from one friendly Power to another,

English people often refer to "wooden nut-megs" and "sawdust ham," intending thereby to insinuate that the Yankee nation are given to tricks which a true-born Briton would hesitate to indulge in. Not long since mention was made of an incident which occurred on an English race-course. During the run a sudden rain storm came up, and while the leading horses had pulled up past the post it was discovered that he was all streaky and striped. A swindle had been attempted, but the colors used were not water-proof, and the bright bay turned out to be a speckly roan. An incident of a like nature, also tending to show the true side of the British nation, has just occurred. It seems that the carcasses of sheep supplied at Wandsworth to a large firm have for some time past been sent with their heads on, so as to insure that the mutton was southdown. The other day one of the sheep thus supplied was unfortunately caught out in the rain, and before the attending messenger could put it under cover, its painted complexion had entirely disappeared. The Opposition leaders with very friendly feelings after the course pursued by the latter during the recess. Sir John A. Macdonald and his troupe made it their special business last summer, to organize a series of pic-nics for the special purpose of giving them the opportunity of slander- ing and vilifying the Government. At these gatherings, the actions of the Government were misrepresented, their characters traduced, their friends slan- dered, and in many instances the foulest personal abuse heaped upon them. It no doubt is beyond the power of Sir John A. Macdonald, Dr. Tupper, et hoc, to per- manently injure the character of any respectable man, but still not to feel an- noyed at their persistent and dastardly attacks would indicate an amount of callousness to which few but Sir John A. Macdonald can lay a claim. One of Sir John's strong points as a leader is that he has no political character to lose. No deed that he can perform can injure his reputation. It is very different with statesmen like Messrs. Blake and Mac- kenzie, whose private and political record are unsuspected and unimpeachable; and therefore it is not surprising that they felt like dealing somewhat sharply with the men who had spent an entire summer in trying to blacken their reputations. Whilst the Government manifested that indignation which men conscious of their honesty and uprightness always show in presence of their traducers, the Opposi- tion were bitter and violent because they cannot get office. Mr. Rymal once de- clared that the proverbial bear robbed of her whelps is mildness personified com- pared with the Tory out of office, and the recent session furnished many scandal- ous though very striking illustrations of the truth of this statement. Under these circumstances it is not at all remarkable that there should be a little more than the usual amount of temper displayed in the debates. It could not well be otherwise. The Government were determined to defend their every act—and they succeed- ed triumphantly—knowing as they did that every act of theirs was performed honestly and from the best motives, and their opponents came determined to mis- represent, traduce and falsify when it seemed probable that political capital could be made by such disreputable tactics. It would have said little for the Government if they had not warmly resented such political warfare. It is only given to such politicians as Sir John A. Macdonald to act the part of the Japanese who smiled blandly when caught in a gross falsehood and pleas- antly observed to the man that caught him, "you are too clever for me."

The session will be long remembered for the Tory scandals brought to light. The secret service disclosures not only prove that Sir John A. Macdonald retain- ed public money for two years after he left office and had no more right to it than any man on the street, but the dates show as clearly as indirect evidence can that large sums were taken from this fund to assist Tory candidates in their elections. We have good reason to believe that evidence will be yet forth- coming which will put this matter beyond the possibility of a doubt. Sir John ordered certain documents to be destroyed when he was about to leave office, but he may not have covered up his tracks as well as he supposed. The Northern rail- way revelations, too, throw a flood of light on the past history of Toryism. We know now where at least a part of the money used to come from to help such candidates as John Beverly Robinson, and we shall know more before the next election takes place. When a compara- tively short and poor railway like the Northern could be bled so freely, we can well understand what drafts were made upon the more wealthy corporations. A fitting sequel to these damaging exposures was the disgusting hypocrisy of Sir John A. Macdonald, Rufus Stephenson, Grand Master Bowell, and others of that ilk, in making a savage onslaught on Mr.

despatched from the shore to the scene of the wreck, in which were an officer of Marines named Skowlow, an aide-de camp named Ragoulai, and Lieut. Doubanoff. They were unsuccessful in finding any of the officers and crew in the water, but Lieut. Doubanoff had the honor of cap- turing the flag of the sunken monitor. The ill-fated vessel was under the com- mand of Hedzet Bey, and had 200 men on board at the time she was so sudden- ly destroyed. Out of this number only one man was saved, and he was picked up at the distance of a mile from the other Turkish vessels. None of the Turkish commanders made any attempt to succor their comrades in distress. The sinking of the monitor was a remarkable event, sudden and supreme in its effects. At eight o'clock that evening the Grand Duke Nicholas, having been apprised of the news, at once telegraphed to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor Alex- ander, reciting the main facts. During the same night the Czar telegraphed to the Grand Duke, asking for the name of the commandant whence the shells were fired, and that of the artilleryist who pointed the gun. According to the rules of the Russian service, both the officer and the man are entitled to receive the Grand Cross of St. George.

That Austria will move troops into Bosnia, is most probable. The line of action for England is probably marked out. There are tasks we cannot, and tasks that we can, undertake. We cannot cope with Russia in the open field; for our small contingent of forty thousand men, far from its base, would soon dwindle to a shadow. But we can defend Constantinople if need be; we can prevent Crete falling into other hands. And we believe it will be found that no sooner will Russia have crossed the frontier than our Government will dispatch what force it can collect, not to Constantinople, but to Crete, and to the peninsula on the west of the Dardanelles; there to bide events of the day. The grounds, giving no aid to the Turk, but ready, if our interests are directly threatened, to occupy lines west of Constantinople, and hold them against all comers.

In the blackness of the situation one gleam of light shines out. We have at length learned that Prince Bismark's retirement, which it is endeavored to at- tribute to German politics, is due to his inability to bring the Emperor to his views regarding war with France. The Emperor, stern as he is, shrinks from the idea of so soon entering on another great war without any immediate striking provocation, and the Chancellor sees all his efforts foiled. All his plans have been in vain. While Gortschakoff has conquered the Czar, and made of him an unwilling tool, the old German Kaiser is firm and unyielding; and even the great Bismark has to give way. The influence of the Prince Imperial, and of "that Englishwoman," whom Bismark likes not, are to be traced in this. If Europe is spared the horrors of this war in the West, in which Italy would as- surely have chimed in, all the horrors of the war in the East may more easily be borne.

The voice of the British people has not yet spoken. Led away on false tracks Englishmen have been hoodwinked and deceived. With statesman-like reticence our Ministers have said no word against the Government of the Czar. But when Russia throws aside the mask, when our Government speaks out, and tells the deeds of lying and chicanery which it knows full well; when the English people learn how they have been cheat- ed and beguiled—with one voice the nation will cry out to be revenged for the deceit, and will demand that our honor, and our interests be protected by the might of our strong right arm.

French Foreign Office, says it is certainly a most serious incident.

The Courier de France declares it is impossible to imagine a more alarming diplomatic document. "We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that it is a perilous indication of coolness between England and Russia and Germany."

A local paper, noticing the affair kindly informs us that "the head of the animal was exhibited by the medical of- ficer to the Guardians at their last meet- ing, and excited profound indignation and disgust."

PROTECTION OF DRUNKARDS.

Subjoined is a blank form, which the Government Licence Inspectors desire to be put before the public for the benefit of those women and friends who have urged prohibition of giving drink to habitual drunkards:—

"To Liquor Sellers.—You are hereby forbidden, under authority of the Tem- perance Act of 1864, to sell or deliver; in any manner, intoxicating liquor to— who has the habit of drinking to excess. Also take notice that I will proceed as the law directs against any persons violating this prohibitory notice. Dated this— day of—, 1877."

Damages are recoverable from $20 to $500, on conviction. This notice must be served on every individual liquor seller, by one of the relatives, guardians, or protectors. This is the part of the Dun- kin bill which is not permissive, but is in force over the old Province of Canada— Ontario and Quebec.

RAILROAD COMPETITION.

A few days ago a Chicago stock dealer, who ships largely to the Eastern markets tried an experiment as to which of the eastern lines would the most quickly convey his stock to market. He despatched a train each over the Grand Trunk, Canada Southern and Great Western Railroads. The result was that the Grand Trunk train beat the Great Western four hours and the Canada Southern two hours on the road to Buffalo. On one part of the run on the Grand Trunk, 126 miles were made in 3 hours, or 42 miles per hour, which shows what efforts are being made by our great national railway to hurry forward stock to market.

The town of Iquique, Peru, has been destroyed by an earthquake.

RUNNING THE RUSSIAN BATTERIES.

The account of Hobart Pasha's defence of the Russians on the Danube is a thrilling story. While his vessel was lying near Rustchuk the Turkish authorities received intelligence of the arrival of the Russians at Galatz, and they were placing torpedoes in the river. Hobart Pasha was advised to leave his camp in the Danube and return to Constantinople via Verna, but, disdaining such counsel, he declared that he would rather blow up his ship than desert. Night approaching, he made every thing ready for running into the Black Sea in opposition to all Russian hostile intentions, getting clear fires under the keels of his craft in order to avoid smoke from her funnel, and other arrangements. The Rethym, he it said, is a very fast boat, capable of steaming at the rate of 15 knots an hour. When Hobart Pasha started on his daring expedition the Danube current was running fast, being estimated at fully five miles an hour. Upon nearing Galatz he found that heavily armed Russian batteries commanded the river, looking capable of sinking anything afloat, besides torpedoes reported to be hidden beneath the waters. Immediately it was dark word was passed "Lights out," and the steamer sped rapidly along. The Russian batteries were soon reached, and the Russian lanterns, the heavy guns and the Russian soldiers in great numbers were clearly visible to those who manned the saucy Rethym, when suddenly a rocket was fired up from the Roumanian shore to rise the Muscovite gunners of Hobart Pasha's coming. Other rockets followed in quick succession. Then the hoarse word of command was distinctly heard; bugles sounded, and the drums beat merrily, among the Russians to their posts. Hobart Pasha expected every moment to be blown out of the water by the fire of the Russian guns he was treating so cavalierly, but being determined to make efforts in the degree proportionate to the great danger he was facing, he ran his vessel close to the shore—not forty metres from the batteries themselves—indeed, so near that the Russian gunners were unable to compress their pieces sufficiently fast to get a good shot. His boat went quickly by at 20 miles an hour, and soon all danger was over. When satisfied he had nothing to fear from his enemies, Hobart Pasha ordered the crew of the Rethym, which carries one 40-pound Armstrong gun, to throw one shell into the centre of the Russian camp, an order which was quickly obeyed—the missile bursting in the midst of the Muscovite tents. Its effects were of course unknown, but it was the first shot fired upon the Danube in the Russo-Turkish war. Hobart Pasha subsequently proceeded to Constantinople, where he received a hearty welcome and enthusiastic congratulations. Hobart Pasha reports the Russians in force close to Galatz, making preparations apparently to cross the Danube and enter the Dobrudzha to move upon Varna. He also found that two small Russian gun-boats had been brought by across Roumania, and were ready for reaching in the river. He has formed opinion that the depth of water is sufficient to enable gun-boat operations in Galatz to be successfully carried out, but believes that if he were allowed to, he could prevent any crossing of the Russians. The Muscovites fired 11 and shots in considerable quantities, the daring of Hobart Pasha carried him into the Black Sea, past all dangers, and flying colors.

He also found that two small gun-boats had been brought by cross Roumania, and were ready for service on the river. He has formed opinion that the depth of water is sufficient to enable gun-boat operations at Galatz to be successfully carried out, he could prevent any crossing of the Russians. The Muscovites fired and shots in considerable quantities were fired by Hobart Pasha carried into the Black Sea, past all dangers, flying colors.

Continental Press on Lord Derby's Reply to Russia.

The Russian Telegraphic Agency, announcing the delivery of Lord Derby's reply, says:—"We are assured that the Russian government will not reply to that would be to carry on a controversy when it is a question of making peace."

The Berlin National Gazette believes a will not reply, because the only possible reply, would be a declaration of war.

The Paris Moniteur, the organ of the French Foreign Office, says it is certainly not serious incident.

The Courrier de France declares it is impossible to imagine a more alarming diplomatic document. "We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that it is a perfunctory statement of coolness between England and Germany."

Lord Derby's reply has produced a sensation of surprise and sensation in London. It is said to have caused serious and displeasure at St. Petersburg.

The Paris Temps commenting on Earl's note, says:—"Such language is never used in communications from one power to another."

ENDING ENGLISH BUTCHERS.

English people often refer to "wooden nags" and "sawdust ham," intending by so to insinuate that the Yankee are given to tricks which a true Briton would hesitate to indulge in. Long since mention was made of an incident which occurred on an English course. During the run a sudden storm came up, and when the lead-horses had pulled up past the post it discovered that he was all streaky striped. A windmill had been at work, but the colors used were not waterproof, and the bright bay turned out to be a speckled roan. An incident of this nature, also tending to show the side of the British nation, has just occurred. It seems that the carcasses of sheep supplied at Wandsworth to a large house for some time past been sent their heads on, so as to insure that the nation was southdown. The other one of the sheep thus supplied was unfortunately caught in the rain, and before the attending surgeon could put it under cover, its head complexion had entirely disappeared.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT.

On Sunday last, Hugh Ralston, Patrick Currie, Thomas Shea, and Robert McRossie engaged a small skiff and started for Mill Point, when about three miles on their return trip the boat upset and Robert McRossie was drowned. The full particulars are given in the following evidence before the Coroner's Jury on Tuesday forenoon. The first witness, Patrick Currie, testified as follows:—

I was acquainted with the deceased Robert McRossie about 10 years, saw him the last time about 9 o'clock Sunday evening in the water near the Big Bend, Napanee river. There were four in the boat when coming up the river. The deceased, Thos. Shea, Hugh Ralston and myself. Robert had been rowing and said he would change seats with Mr. Shea, he went to step from one seat to the other and fell out in the water backwards, on the Richmond side of the boat. We all made a grab, in doing so, leaned over the side and all went in the water. I told them to get to the boat, I brought Robert there and the others got there themselves, told them to keep up courage, hold on and we would get ashore if they kept quiet. They all having hold, I got external appearances observed on the body. I am of the opinion that the deceased came to his death by drowning.

VERDICT.

We the Coroner's Jury selected to enquire into the cause of the death of the late Robert McRossie, find:—

That the said Robert McRossie came to his death by drowning in Napanee River, on Sunday evening the 20th May inst., having fallen from a skiff while sailing in company with Hugh Ralston, Patrick Currie and Thomas Shea.

CHARLES LANE,
Foreman.

Napanee, May 22nd, 1877.

Jas. C. Huffman, Coroner; Chas. Lane, Foreman; Miles Fralick, Daniel Higley, Norman Hogle, Jno. Aylsworth, Geo. Mitchell, Jehiel Aylsworth, Jas McKay, Billiat Conger, John Abrams, Geo. B. Sills, Thos Molloy, E. T. Curlett, Alex. Grange, Jas. Ferguson, Henry Fralick, Timothy Bell, Matthew Carnell, Thomas Symington.

The deceased has been a resident of Napanee from his boyhood. He was widely known, of a retiring disposition and a favorite with all. For over seventeen years he was employed as operator and ticket agent at the Grand Trunk Railway Station in Napanee, and latterly, was with Mr. Daly, during the dredging of our harbor. Every situation being filled with credit to himself, and to the satisfaction of his employers.

A large party from Napanee after grappling the greater part of Monday, drew a seine and recovered Shea's hat, the second time, the body was brought to the surface at 6.35 on Monday evening. The watch of the deceased was found to have stopped at 9.50 which accords with the time he was last seen. Mr. McRossie was unmarried and aged 36 years. The sad accident leading his untimely end has called up universal feelings of regret.

Messrs Macfie, Sagar, and Oliver are deserving of the highest praise for their prompt action in rescuing the survivors who would otherwise, doubtless have perished ere assistance reached them.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Regular meeting, Monday May 21st. Present.—Messrs. Clift, James Roe, Lane, Fralick, Carscallen and Joy. Mayor absent. Mr. James in Chair. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

PETITIONS.

The following petitions were presented, by C. Lane, from John Clark and others, asking for improvements on Union street in West Ward, which is unfit for travel it is necessarily used by residents of that locality, as a means of access to and from Dundas to Bridge street, and requires grading and levelling to render it fit for public use. Moved by Mr. Fralick seconded by Mr. Clift, that it be referred to street committee to report.

From John Carson, stating that the Fire Brigade at their last meeting had passed a resolution authorizing him to ask council to advance $60 on their salary for 1877 for buying shirts. Moved by Mr. Joy, seconded by Mr. Carscallen that prayer be granted. Carried.

Mr. Roe presented a petition from Kate McKernick asking for fire-wood, petitioner being helpless through weak eyesight. Moved by Mr. Roe, seconded by Mr. Carscallen, and referred to poor and sanitary committee with power to act.

From Jno. C. Clark and others, for a crossing from Zina Ham's house on Donald street to opposite side, to allow residents on West side Donald street to use side-walk on East side said street. Moved by Mr. Roe, seconded by Mr. Carscallen, and referred to street committee to report at next meeting.

From A. L. Morden, saying that a public nuisance in the shape of an open sewer was located on East side of John, between Thomas and Graham streets. It was now intolerable, and had existed for three years, and if not abated the coror-poration regarding my name, let the take Hunter's advice.

The Manitoba excitement is beginning to work in the minds of our settlers, the are signs of an exodus from this locality shortly, a word or two in the EXPRESS about the route, fare &c., will be acceptable.

On the 17th, had heavy thunder with little rain here, but very heavy a little distance north. The 18th, strong with the 19th, warm and sultry especially Sunday the 20th, 21st glorious sent rain. Rain has been much needed, ga dens and crops were suffering, other place have been blessed with more rain than us. The little pests called mosquitos and black flies are very annoying, the are a plague for both man and beast.

Farmers are about through, they have been longing for rain and gladly the enjoy it.

(From our Special)

Mr. Joiner has made great repairs and improvements in the woolen factor lately. First class work, by first class hands is guaranteed, and to make it convenient for customers at a distance a conveyance travels once a week to Arden, Marlbank, and Enterprise, to get and return work safely and promptly, 2 per cent discount for cash.

Mr. Jones woolen factory has also undergone great improvements, and more are in contemplation. His machinery which has been lately added, is of the very best, and his workmanship is warranted, Mr. Jones thoroughly understands the woolen trade, and is well known throughout the country, his friends are numerous, and he has so secured their confidence, as to be sure of all the work he can attend to.

On Saturday the 19th ult., an accident occurred here which might have proved serious. Two men Mr. Mayne and Mr. Johnson, working at Mr. Fuller's new building, the scaffold gave away and they fell from the height of 14 feet among some lumber underneath, fortunately both escaped without serious injury, and are now around quite smart.

P. T. Barnum's European Plans and Purchases.

The American Register, published at Paris, France, in its issue of February 3 1877, refers as follows to Mr. Barnum's plans and purchases:

Mr. P. T. Barnum, whose renown as a showman is world-wide, a short time since sent agents to Europe to purchase novelties for his American Hippodrome, also to make arrangements for travelling through Europe with a vast collection of wild animals and curiosities of every nature. Purchases have been made for him from Herr Hagenbeck, of Hamburg, and from the Zoological Gardens of London, Berlin, and Amsterdam, an enumeration of which would take up too much space, but the importance of which cannot be too much dwelt upon. In fact, the transportation of his animals will require more room than could be given upon two steamers between deck. From Mr. James Myers, the proprietor of the Great American Circus in this city, Mr. Barnum's agents have purchased six of the magnificent Trakene stallions, which Mr. Myers at enormous cost obtained from the stud of the Crown Prince of Germany. These animals are singularly well trained, and unequalled for beauty of frame and action, and will attract great interest in the United States, where such a performance as theirs has never been witnessed. They march, trot, and gallop at the word of command; they wheel left or right with the precision of trained soldiers. A word suffices for these intelligent four-footed actors, who

On Sunday last, Hugh Ralston, Patrick Currie, Thomas Shea and Robert McKossie engaged a small skiff and started for Mill Point, when about three miles on their return trip the boat upset and Robt. McKossie was drowned. The full particulars are given in the following evidence before the Coroner's Jury on Tuesday forenoon. The first witness, Patrick Currie, testified as follows:—

I was acquainted with the deceased Robt. McKossie about 10 years, saw him the last time about 9 o'clock Sunday evening in the water near the Big Bend, Napanee river. There were four in the boat when coming up the river. The deceased, Thos. Shea, Hugh Ralston and myself. Robert had been rowing and said he would change seats with Mr. Shea, he went to step from one seat to the other and fell out in the water backwards, on the Richmond side of the boat. We all made a grab, in doing so, leaned over the side and all went in the water. I told them to get to the boat, I brought Robert there and the others got there themselves, told them to keep up courage, hold on and we would get ashore if they kept quiet. They all having held, I got to the stern and attempted to swim ashore, shoving the boat ahead. They staid pretty quiet for about half an hour, then became uneasy, the boat commenced rolling again, and we all went under water, I then got Robert around to the boat which turned again, told them to keep quiet, Shea got him on this time, he kept shifting, finally rolled off, and I never saw him after. I was at the stern, looked to see if he would come up, but did not see him.

I then got Ralston on top of the boat and kept working towards shore. Then getting hold of a crotched stick which was fast in the bottom of the river, and kept the boat quiet until assistance came from shore. When Mr. Oliver and his friends brought us ashore they returned and recovered our boat with coats and hats. We left Mill Point about half past seven and were about three and a half miles this side when the accident occurred, cannot say what was the reason the deceased did not try to help himself. I think Mr. Shea tried to help him. Ralston had all he could do to help himself.

Inquest was adjourned till 7.30 in the evening when the remaining witnesses testified.

THOMAS SHEA, sworn.—I live in Napanee, knew the deceased, saw him last alive on Sunday evening between 9 and 10 o'clock on top of the boat about 3 miles this side of Mill Point. Had been down to the Point, Ralston, Currie, the deceased and myself left here at half past three, and Mill Point at half past eight for Napanee. Landed at Unger's Island, cannot say whether engaged or Ralston got on shore after leaving island. Ralston and deceased were rowing. About one and a half miles from the island when we were capsized. Think half or three-quarters of an hour elapsed before he was drowned. Could not see any reason why he did not try to save himself.

I walked to Unger's. The others came in waggons. Have not seen deceased since.

HUGH RALSTON, sworn.—I knew the deceased about 10 or 12 years. Left Napanee between 3 and 4. At the time of the accident we were seated, deceased was rowing with the bow oar, and myself the other. I think deceased tripped when he was changing to go to the stern, and Shea was to take his place, he went out, or struck on the edge and upset the boat, he appeared to be more alarmed when Currie shouted for help and was

From A. L. Morden, saying that a public nuisance in the shape of an open sewer was located on East side of John, between Thomas and Graham streets. He requested a decision by next meeting he cannot accept $40 the only modification I can make is to relinquish council fees, makes a final unprejudiced offer, viz.—That Council pay him one half of what he paid for the Town Hall (7.50) and all costs as between party and party that is all, exclusive of counsel fees. This latter together with the $62.50, which he proposes to throw off, aggregates about $100, and this is certainly as much as he can be expected to lose in the matter &c. Moved by Mr. Lane seconded by Mr. Roe that the matter contained in Pringle's letter be deferred, until next meeting—Carried.

P. T. Barnum's European Pilgrimage.

THE FLAG OF THE PROPHET.

Now that the Sultan is reported raised the Prophet's banner, it is while to note what is this "Flag of the Prophet," around which the turbaned Faithful, are called upon to rally black, about two ells wide, and with a green tassel that had hung before of Ayesha, the favorite wife of the Prophet, whose affection for her was so strong that he was wont to say that she would be the first of his wives to enter the gates of Paradise would be regarded by the Mohammedans most sacred relic. As the Prophet's death bed in this chamber his warriors came to take leave of him he presented them with the curtain as a banner, looking upon them as they were to remember that they were for Allah and Mahomet. After became the custom of the Caliphs they entered upon a campaign, this standard (the Samshak) borne before them. Still later it was that the banner was to be raised when the war in which the Sultan religion, the Caliphs—engaged were ended upon in behalf of the faith, deposited in Constantinople, covered with forty-two wrappings it was deposited in a chapel in the city of the Seraglio, where it is preserved by seven emirs with prayers. What gives this standard peculiar significance is the belief who dies in its shadow goes at the highest joys of Paradise.

Something about Newspapers.

That the Americans are a reading people is manifest by the statistics of the Newspaper Press of the country, as given in the NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY FOR 1877, just issued by S. M. PERRY & Co., the well-known Advertising Agents of New York, Boston and Philadelphia. There are reported in it the names, character (political, agricultural, religious, medical, etc.) and names of publishers of no less than 795 dailies, 79 triweeklies, 125 semi-weeklies, 6,006 weeklies, 122 semi-monthlies, 774 monthlies, 16 bi-monthlies and 60 quarterlies, published in the United States and the British American Provinces. The Directory shows the number of each of these editions which are published in each State, Territory or Province. The book contains 376 pages, and embraces an immense amount of valuable information, showing great labor and care in its collection and preparation, information having been sought from every city, town, and village where even the smallest newspaper is published. It gives all necessary facts for an advertiser to know about 8,574 separate publications, while it is also interesting and valuable for the general reader, the student of American periodical literature, and the observer of American institutions. The book is sold at the low price of $1.00 per copy. And is certainly cheap at the price to any business man who does advertising, or to any person who is interested in the extent of the Newspaper business in America.

I think deceased tripped when he was changing to go to the stern, and Shea was to take his place, he went out, or struck on the edge and upset the boat, he appeared to be more alarmed when Currie shouted for help, and was ambitious to get on top of the boat. I was under the boat twice, think it was half or three-quarters of an hour before assistance came. Currie helped me to grasp the boat. I then missed deceased.

NELSON S. MARICLE, sworn.—I live in the Township of Richmond. Heard some person shouting for help, ran in the direction of the noise. George Sagar and I got in a fish boat, rowed out and found three men clinging to a boat, Currie, Ralston and Shea, whom we took aboard and brought ashore. We then got knots, made a light and grappled for deceased, until about 2 o'clock, and again on Monday, when we fished him up with a net. Ralston was on top of the boat, Currie and Shea holding on the sides, about 100 yards from shore. Water 8 feet deep where we found the parties. About 3 miles from Mill Point.

Geo. Sagar, corroborates the above evidence of Maricle, and thinks they were rescued about half an hour after the shouting was heard.

ALEX. OLIVER, sworn.—Live in Township of Richmond. It was near 10 o'clock when I heard shouting for help. Ran to the river, could not get my boat on account of being locked. When rescued Patrick Curry and Shea were the only ones capable of helping themselves, Ralston and Shea appeared to be very much exhausted. I was one of the party that went after the boat, it was upside-down, and was very tottish, four men would have all they could do to save themselves in such a position, think 10 minutes more would have finished them.

THE GREAT EASTERN TO BE A SHIP

The owners of the Great Eastern considering the propriety of converting that magnificent vessel into a huge refrigerating chamber for the conveyance of American meat. A recent examination has disclosed the fact that, like the British—another of Brunel's ships hull is practically in as good condition when first built, and the directors consider it would be wise to raise sufficient money to put new and improved engines and boilers into the vessel. They have been empowered to prepare a rough estimate of the cost of the new machinery and in view of the fact that the vessel even now steam as fast as any of the Atlantic liners, the trade in meat is being developed not only with the United States, but also with Brazil, and is to open a wide field of usefulness a trade in which the great vessel never carry only half a load.—Scienceman.

For over seventeen years he was employed as operator and ticket agent at the Grand Trunk Railway Station in Napanee, and latterly, was with Mr. Jaly, during the dredging of our harbor. Every situation being filled with credit to himself, and to the satisfaction of his employers.

A large party from Napanee after grappling the greater part of Monday, crew a fine and recovered Shea's hat, the second time, the body was brought to the surface at 6.35 on Monday evening. DOCTRINE regarding my name, let them take Hunter's advice.

The Manitoba excitement is beginning to work in the minds of our settlers, there are signs of an exodus from this locality shortly, a word or two in the EXPRESS about the route, fare &c., will be acceptable.

On the 17th, had heavy thunder with little rain here, but very heavy a little distance north. The 18th, strong wind, the 19th, warm and sultry especially on Sunday the 20th, 21st glorious gentle rain. Rain has been much needed, gardens and crops were suffering, other places have been blessed with more rain than us. (From our Special)

Mr. Joiner has made great repairs and improvements in the woolen factory lately. First class work, by first class hands is guaranteed, and to make it convenient for customers at a distance, a conveyance travels once a week to Arden, Marlbank, and Enterprise, to get and return work safely and promptly, 20 per cent discount for cash.

Mr. Jones woolen factory has also underwent great improvements, and more are in contemplation. His machinery, which has been lately added, is of the very best, and his workmanship is warranted. Mr. Jones thoroughly understands the woolen trade, and is well known throughout the country, his friends are numerous, and he has so secured their confidence, as to be sure of all the work he can attend to.

On Saturday the 19th ult., an accident occurred here which might have proved serious. Two men Mr. Mayne and Mr. Johnson, working at Mr. Fuller's new building, the scaffold gave away and they fell from the height of 14 feet among some lumber underneath, fortunately both escaped without serious injury, and are now around quite smart.

P. T. Barnum's European Plans and Purchases.

The American Register, published at Paris, France, in its issue of February 3, 1877, refers as follows to Mr. Barnum's plans and purchases:

Mr. P. T. Barnum, whose renown as a showman is world-wide, a short time since sent agents to Europe to purchase novelties for his American Hippodrome, also to make arrangements for traveling through Europe with a vast collection of wild animals and curiosities of every nature. Purchases have been made for him from Herr Hagenbeck, of Hamburg, and from the Zoological Gardens of London, Berlin, and Amsterdam, an enumeration of which would take up too much space, but the importance of which cannot be too much dwelt upon. In fact, the transportation of his animals will require more room than could be given upon two steamers between deck. From Mr. James Myers, the proprietor of the Great American Circus in this city, Mr. Barnum's agents have purchased six of the magnificent Trakene stallions, which Mr. Myers at enormous cost obtained from the stud of the Crown Prince of Germany. These animals are singularly well trained, and unequalled for beauty of frame and action, and will attract great interest in the United States, where such performance as theirs has never been witnessed. They march, trot, and gallop at the word of command: they wheel left or right with the precision of trained soldiers. A word suffices for

FINDING OF THE METHODIST CHURCH COMMITTEE IN THE HERESY CASE.

MONTREAL, May 16.—The Committee of the Methodist Church appointed to investigate the charges of heresy preferred against Rev. Jas. Roy by Rev. John Borland, have presented the following judgement:—

"We find that the charge of fifth count, which we have considered first, viz., that relating to the authority of the Holy Scriptures as a rule of faith, has been sustained.

"That the charge on the first count relating to the Trinity, has been sustained.

"That the charge on the second count, relating to the Incarnation, has been sustained.

"That the charge on the third count, relating to the Atonement, has been sustained.

"On the fourth count of the charge we find, first, that the references of Mr. Roy to the subject of retribution are few and limited; second that Mr. Roy does not fully hold the teachings of Wesley regarding the basis of the sinner's condemnation; third that we gladly recognize the fact that Mr. Roy avows his decided belief in the eternity of future retribution.

"We therefore regret to be obliged to condemn the teaching promulgated by Mr. Roy in his pamphlet as rationalistic, and in some respects absolutely Unitarian and in nearly every respect Socinian in their tendencies. We regret that we find in these teachings not only a departure from the standards of faith of the Methodist Church of Canada, but also a decided antagonism to the orthodox views of all evangelical Churches, and much as we regret to be thus obliged to condemn the views of a brother whose character and ability we highly esteem we still feel bound by our obligations to truth and to the Church to render the aforesaid judgement."

At the afternoon session the Committee according to the disciplinary powers given them, after a lengthy discussion, agreed upon the suspension of Mr. Roy from the ministry of the Church until the district meeting, one dissenting.

Rose & Fralick have a very large and well selected stock of Boots and Shoes, Hats and caps, Clothing, Gents furnishings &c. &c. See them before purchasing as they will not be undersold.

HARD TIMES IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Those who have any doubt about the hardness of the times in San Francisco need only to watch for a few nights the appearance of the unfortunate men who are provided with lodgings in the city prison, having no other place to sleep. Many of them are a very different class from those who used to apply for lodgings two or three years ago. They are not bums who have failed to levy for that night the sum requisited for the purchase of a sleeping place, nor are they habitually "hay-bunkers" and vagrants whom wet or cold have driven to the unwelcome shelter of the lock-up. Many of them retain the remnants of a respectable appearance; the clothes they wear were once stylish and good, and they ask for a place to sleep in a manner that makes a looker-on sorry for them and even follow the trusty to get their blankets with an air of humiliation that checks even the ribaldry of the pretty thieves, who from behind their bars are accustomed to shout in the hearing of "lodger." "Give him a feather pillow!" "Clean sheets for that gentleman!" etc. The rush of two thousand men to California street on the chance of a job of work on a railroad was quite a commentary on the situation in this city; the swarms that crowd around the bulletin boards are another, and the time is past when the harbor been heard from. The misanthropic spirit which possessed this man was doubtless due to disordered digestion and a biliousness, one of the prominent symptoms of which is a morose, fault finding disposition. The tongue is heavily coated, giving rise to a bad taste, the appetite is not good, and the patient feels dull, sleepy, or dizzy, and is apt to be fretful. Unfortunately, M. Diogenes lived several centuries before Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets were invented, a few doses of which would have relieved him of his "bile," and enabled him to find scores of "honest men" without the aid of his lantern. Under their magic influence, combined with that of the Golden Medicine, to cleanse his blood, he might have been led to take a more cheerful view of life, to exchange his tub for a decent habitation, to "spruce up" in personal appearance, and at last have taken a wife to mend his clothes and his manners, both of which were in evident need of repairs, and become the happy sire of little Diogenes who would have handed down to posterity the name, not of a cynic philosopher, but of a cheerful, healthy, happy, virtuous man!!

From A. L. Morden, saying that a public nuisance in the shape of an open sewer was located on East side of John, between Thomas and Graham streets. These are hard times, and they are not likely to be better for a long time to come. THE PRESS ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting is fixed for Wednesday, August 1st, at 11 a. m., at Montreal. The annual excursion is to take place over the Intercolonial to the maritime provinces. The Association will leave Montreal on Wednesday by boat for Quebec, where cars will be taken for Shediac, whence the party will pass over to Prince Edward Island. After a day or two there, the excursion will proceed from Charlottetown to Pictou, inspecting the coal mines, then to Halifax and other points of interest in Nova Scotia, including the Londonderry Steel Works and the Annapolis Valley, the scene of Longfellow's Evangeline. Across to St. John and up the river to Fredericton, will take up a couple of days, and the party will endeavor to reach Toronto and home by the second Saturday night. The details are not yet decided upon, but the foregoing general outline has been adopted. All arrangements will be made at the earliest possible day by the Secretary, Mr. W. R. Clinne, Bowmanville, and the President, Mr. C. D. Barr, Lindsay, and duly announced. It is hoped that the attendance of members of the Association and representative press men of Ontario will be large, as the excursion presents a splendid opportunity for seeing the industries and resources of our fellow countrymen down by the sea, and making pleasant personal acquaintances.

The Seventeen-Year Locusts.

A gentleman from Newington, Conn., mentions the occurrence of a flight of beetles in the early even twilight that must have included millions. They made a loud humming or booming sound, and were the thinks about ten minutes in passing over. Some that were caught proved to be apparently beetles, but of a different appearance from the beetles, that are most known hereabouts. From other quarters we hear of their being found in large numbers emerging from the ground. THE GREAT EASTERN TO BE A MEAT SHIP

The owners of the Great Eastern are, considering the propriety of converting that magnificent vessel into a huge refrig-erating chamber for the conveyance of American meat. A recent examination has disclosed the fact that, like the Great Britain—another of Brunels ships—the hull is practically in as good condition as when first built, and the directors consider it would be wise to raise sufficient money to put new and improved engines and boilers into the vessel. They have been empowered to prepare a rough estimate of the cost of the new machinery;
and in view of the fact that the vessel can even now steam as fast as any of the Atlantic liners, the trade in meat, which is being developed not only with the United States, but also with Brazil, promises to open a wide field of usefulness
a trade in which the great vessel need never carry only half a load.—Scientific

The San Francisco Chronicle of the ship l'eur de Lis, which arrived yesterday from Ardrossan, reports a very singular experience on the voyage.

When off Staten Island, which lies eastward from Cape Horn, the ship encountered a school of whales, which seems to have resolved itself into an escort to attend her on the remainder of her passage. The whales kept in close company with the ship through this long stretch of thousands of miles and did not leave her until she arrived off this port and put in for shore, when they took their leave with a series of lively flounders and an occasional spout to sure the master that they were taking in pumbers to his health.
As the passage round Cape Horn and through the Pacific was a good one, it is fair to presume that the escort was auspicious.

The Seventeen-Year Locusts.

A gentleman from Newington, Conn., mentions the occurrence of a flight of beetles in the early even twilight that must have included millions. They made a loud humming or booming sound, and were the thinks about ten minutes in passing over. Some that were caught proved to be apparently beetles, but of a different appearance from the beetles,
that are most known hereabouts.
From other quarters we hear of their being found in large numbers emerging from the ground. A resident of the north-west part of Hartford, on the Blue Hill Road, brings in two branches of a plum tree—one all of leaves and blossoms
that were broken off yesterday before sunset the other stripped nearly bare, that was broken off this morning. It is the work of these beetles or locusts, who, it seems, devour the leaves at night. From New Yorkstate come reports of the appearance of the "seventeen year locusts" in myriads, and they seem to be the same insect that is found in this region. They are said to lie dormant in the ground for seventeen years.

We have still on hand a lot of last years goods, warranted not damaged,
which we will sell at one half the usual price, these goods are a bargain for those buying them as they are as good as new,
call and see them. ROSE & FRALICK.

MR. DIOGENES

This singular man lived in Greece. He was distinguished for his eccentricities, bad manners, and bad disposition. It was his chief business to find fault. For example, he took a lantern one day when the sun was shining brightly and went out to search for an honest man, thereby insinuating that such person were exceedingly scarce. When Alexander, a distinguished military gentleman, paid him a visit, and inquired what he could do for him, he had the impudence to tell him to "get out of his sunshine." To cap the climax of his oddities, he dressed like a beggar and lived in a tub! He was a sour, crabbed, crusty old bachelor.
We infer that he had no wife, first, because history does not mention her;
second because no woman would take kindly to one of his habits, dress, or manners, or aspire to become mistress of his mansion. "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe," it is true, but the woman who would live in a tub, and especially with such a companion, has not been heard from. The misanthropic spirit which possessed this man was doubtless due to disordered digestion and a biliousness, one of the prominent symptoms of which is a morose, fault finding disposition. The tongue is heavily coated, giving rise to a bad taste, the appetite is not good, and the patient feels dull, sleepily, or dizzy, and is apt to be fretful. Unfortunately, M. Diogenes lived several centuries before Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets were invented, a few doses of which would have relieved him of his "bile," and enabled him to find scores of "honest men" without the aid of his lantern. Under their magic influence, combined with that of the Golden Medi- Discovery, to cleanse his blood, he might have been led to take a more cheerful view of life, to exchange his tub for a decent habitation, to "spruce up" in per- appearance, and at last have taken a wife to mend his clothes and his manners, both of which were in evident need of re- pairs, and become the happy sire of little Diogeness who would have handed down to posterity the name, not of a cynic philosopher, but of a cheerful, healthy, happy, virtuous man!!

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC

NARROW ROADWAYS.

In his paper on "Village improvement Associations" (Scribner for May,) Colonel Waring advocates narrow roadways. He says:

The great expense of Macadamizing or Telfordizing puts these systems out of the reach of small communities. Wherever the original expense can be borne, the subsequent cost of maintenance will be so light, and the result generally will be so satisfactory as to make it always a good investment. The circumstances under which these costly forms of construction may be adopted will be generally extended if we can overcome the prevalent American prejudice in favor of wide roads. Against wide streets there is as a rule no objection, though exceptional narrow and well shaded lanes have a charm that will always commend them to persons of taste. A wide street, that is, broad spaces between fences, by no means implies a broad roadway. All we need in the principal thoroughfare of a busy village is such a width as will allow of the easy passing of vehicles in the middle of the road, and the standing of one vehicle at rest at each side. This will be accomplished even in the business street of a village by a width of roadway of thirty feet. Under most other circumstances twenty feet of roadway will be ample. This will allow of the moving of three vehicles side by side, and will give a leeway of six feet between two vehicles passing each other. * In the island of Jersey there are many excellent roads only six feet wide. These are provided with frequent little bays or turn-outs to allow teams to pass each other. Although such extremely narrow roads are not to be recommended, the difference in comfort and economy of team power between these and the average American dirt road is enormously in their favor. The widest roads in Jersey, leading from a busy town of thirty thousand inhabitants into a thickly settled farming region, where business and pleasure travel is very active, and where excursion cars carrying thirty or forty persons are constantly passing, are only twenty feet wide; often only of this width between the hedge rows, the road itself being an excellent foot path its whole width. Nowhere else in the world is the rural charm more perfectly developed than in Jersey, and no element of its great beauty is so conspicuous and so constantly satisfactory as its narrow and embowered lanes and roadways.

WHITEWASHING

The following is a correct scientific and practical rule: Well wash the ceiling by wetting it twice with water, lying on as much as can well be floated on, then rub the old color up with a stumpy brush and wipe off with a large sponge. When this is done, stop all the cracks with whiting and plaster of Paris. When dry, clair-cole with size and a little of the whitewash. If very much stained, when this is dry, paint these parts with turps, color, and, if necessary, clair-cole again. To make the whitewash take a dozen lbs. of whiting (in large balls), break them up in a pail, and cover with water to soak. During this time melt over a slow fire 4 lbs. common size, and at the same time, with a palette knife or small trowel, rub up fine about a dessertspoonful of blue-black with water to a fine paste; then pour the water off the top of the whiting, and with a stick stir in the black; when well mixed, stir in the melted size and strain. When cold, it is fit for use. If the jelly is too stiff for use, beat it well up and add a little cold water. Commence whitewashing over the window, and so work from the light; lay off the work into that done, and not all in one direction, as in painting. Distemper color of any tint may be made by using any other color instead of the blue-black.

town of thirty thousand inhabitants into a thickly settled farming region, where business and pleasure travel is very active, and where excursion cars carrying thirty or forty persons are constantly passing, are only twenty feet wide; often only of this width between the hedge rows, the road itself being an excellent foot path its whole width. Nowhere else in the world is the rural charm more perfectly developed than in Jersey, and no element of its great beauty is so conspicuous and so constantly satisfactory as its narrow and embowered lanes and roadways.

The following is a correct scientific and practical rule: Well wash the ceiling by wetting it twice with water, lying on as much as can well be floated on, then rub the old color up with a stumpy brush and wipe off with a large sponge. When this is done, stop all the cracks with whitening and plaster of Paris. When dry, clair-cole with size and a little of the white-wash. If very much stained, when this is dry, paint those parts with turps, color, and, if necessary, clair-cole again. To make the whitewash take a dozen lbs. of whitening (in large balls), break them up in a pail, and cover with water to soak. During this time melt over a slow fire 4 lbs. common size, and at the same time, with a palette knife or small trowel, rub up fine about a dessertspoonful of blue-black with water to a fine paste; then pour the water off the top of the whitening, and with a stick stir in the black; when well mixed, stir in the melted size and strain. When cold, it is fit for use. If the jelly is too stiff for use, beat it well up and add a little cold water. Commence whitewashing over the window, and so work from the light; lay off the work into that done, and not all in one direction, as in painting. Distemper color of any tint may be made by using any other color instead of the blue-black—as ochre, chrome, Dutch pink, raw sienna for yellows and buff; Venetian red, burnt sienna, Indian red, or purple brown for reds; celestial blue ultramarine indigo for blues; red and blue for purple, grey or lavender; red lead and chrome for orange; Brunswick green for greens.

DURABILITY OF SHINGLES

Farmers generally use shingles on the roofs of their buildings, and without doubt they make a good perhaps on the whole, the best, covering. Good pine shingles will last from twenty to thirty years, and the best of shayed cedar nearly as long. Sawed shingles are not nearly as durable as shayed ones. The nails seem to rust off with the sawed shingles, and the roof in a few years becomes leaky. If the shingles, whether shayed or sawed, be dipped in lime water before being laid they will last much longer. We have seen shingles laid that were first dipped in strong lime water, and when well dried were dipped into thin red paint and after the roof was covered, it was again painted. Roofs so treated will last more than enough longer to pay the additional cost. In a country where shingles are very cheap, this would not be of much consequence, but generally it would be, and we call attention to it, because the lime water and paint are within reach of all, and can be easily used.

BEARING-REINS FOR HORSES.

The British Medical Journal thus protests: Physiology protests against the strained and artificial attitude which the horse is compelled to assume, and which must certainly lessen his power of drawing weights. Humanity and common sense protests against the infliction of this constant gagging strain upon the sensitive mouth of an animal whose mouth is used by the driver as the principal means of guiding and directing him. Nor can any one who has any real knowledge of, or pleasure in the study of animal forms, feel otherwise than gratified at the free and unconstrained attitude of a horse driven without bearing-reins. No good coachman uses bearing-reins for a horse vest $1,000 at 6 per cent. for each widow of the fireman killed at the late fire, and $500 for each of the children.

No good coachman uses bearing-reins for a horse from which he desires to get the full amount of work, or which he desires to leave at ease. Their employment is, indeed, merely a senseless fashion, which has absolutely nothing to recommend it, and in favor of abolition there are reasons so many and decided that we hope that not many years will pass before they are not entirely disused but forgotten.

POTATO PIE

This is a plain family dish, familiar to English families, but apt to be extremely relished, especially by children. It is a convenient way of using meat the second day. Take as much cold roast beef as will half fill a baking dish suited to the size of your family. Add enough gravy, saved from the day before, or lacking that, enough butter and water, in which to stew the beef until quite tender. Then having ready enough Irish potatoes, boiled, mashed, and seasoned with butter, pepper, and salt, and made smooth, with a little cream or rich milk, fill the dish with them to the top, and place in a well-heated oven to bake until nicely browned. It has a very inviting appearance. Tomato catsup or any nice store sauce may be served with it, but should be added at table, as individual taste may suggest.

TO CLEANSE THE WOODWORK AROUND DOORS.

Take a pail of hot water; throw in two tablespoonfuls of pulverised borax; use a good coarse house cloth, an old coarse towel does splendidly—and wash the painting; do not use a brush; when washing places that are extra yellow are stained, soap the cloth; then sprinkle it with dry powdered borax, and rub the places well, using plenty of rinsing water; by washing the woodwork in this way you will not remove the paint, and the borax will soften and make the hands white—a fact well worth knowing.

The use of borax in domestic economy are numerous; and one of the most valuable is its employment to aid the detergent properties of soap.—Scientific American

Sir Edward Thornton has been made British Minister at Madrid. This is a promotion at the rate of $10,000, or in other words, Sir Edward will receive that much more per annum for his diplomatic services at Madrid than he did for like services at Washington. For the information of Christian generally, it may be briefly stated that this Institution, now in full operation, owes its origin to the liberality of a Christian gentleman, a resident of Toronto, who has invested a portion of his means in the enterprise, as a free will offering to the Lord, with the view of scattering broadcast over our land, Tracts, Books, &c., which unfold the exalted privileges of the believers, and treat of the "LIFE OF EARTH" or Trust, and of the power and peace of Holiness, and Gospel and Evangelical Literature.

Special notice is called to the fact that this is

No Denominational Institution.

It is neither connected with, nor under the patronage of any particular church. All the Publications it issues will be strictly evangelical, and will meet the wants of all Christians. Largely the Books, &c., &c., will be those published by the Willard Tract Repository of Boston, under the care of the well known Dr. CULLIS.

ALL PROFITS that may be made will be devoted to the establishment of a fund for gratuitous distribution of the Tracts and Books to persons and places where they are needed, as may be directed by the Committee. We beg also to say that this Fund for free distribution is open for donations to all who may desire to help in this work of God.

We ask all who may desire to promote the higher spiritual life of the churches and to help in winning souls for Christ, to co-operate with us by circulating sound religious literature throughout the land.

For the information of Christian generally,
it may be briefly stated that this Institution,
now in full operation, owes its origin to the liberality of a Christian gentleman, a resident of Toronto, who has invested a portion of his means in the enterprise, as a free will offering to the Lord, with the view of scattering broadcast over our land, Tracts, Books, &c., &c., which unfold
the exalted privileges of the believers, and treat of the "LIFE OF FAITH" or Trust, and of the power and peace of HOLINESS, and Gospel and Evangelical Literature.

Special notice is called to the fact that this is

No Denominational Institution.

It is neither connected with, nor under the patronage of any particular church. All the publications it issues will be strictly evangelical, and will meet the wants of all Christians. Large the Books, &c., &c., will be those published by the Willard Street Repository of Boston, under the care of the well known Dr. CUTLER.

ALL PROFITS that may be made will be devoted to the establishment of a fund for gratuitous distribution of the Tracts and Books, to persons and places where they are needed, as may be directed by the Committee. We beg also to say that this Fund for free distribution is open for donations to all who may desire to help in this work of God.

We ask all who may desire to promote the higher spiritual life of the churches and be held in winning souls for Christ, to co-operate with us by circulating sound religious literature
throughout the land.

References for further information may be made to the following brethren (and others who may be added), who will act as a Committee for selection and distribution.
